Media, Process, and the Social Construction of Crime Gregg Barak, 2013-10-28 First published in 1995 One of the most pervasive forms of social control in our society is the mass media The public learns from television newspapers magazines movies and books what is happening in the world and how to interpret it The problem however is that full or complete interpretations of reality are not presented In short reality itself clear and unadorned is not to be found in the information provided by the media Instead media presentations consist of those various viewpoints that succeed in capturing the minds and imaginations of the masses or in terms of the 1992 presidential campaign that successfully put the winning spin on information Barak and others believe that criminologists should participate in the various media presentations of crime and justice By bringing their knowledge to bear on media presentations criminologists can help make some news more representative and less distorted of the social reality of crime      Firearms and Violence National Research Council, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Committee on Law and Justice, Committee to Improve Research Information and Data on Firearms, 2004-12-13 For years proposals for gun control and the ownership of firearms have been among the most contentious issues in American politics For public authorities to make reasonable decisions on these matters they must take into account facts about the relationship between guns and violence as well as conflicting constitutional claims and divided public opinion In performing these tasks legislators need adequate data and research to judge both the effects of firearms on violence and the effects of different violence control policies Readers of the research literature on firearms may sometimes find themselves unable to distinguish scholarship from advocacy Given the importance of this issue there is a pressing need for a clear and unbiased assessment of the existing portfolio of data and research Firearms and Violence uses conventional standards of science to examine three major themes firearms and violence the quality of research and the quality of data available The book assesses the strengths and limitations of current databases examining current research studies on firearm use and the efforts to reduce unjustified firearm use and suggests ways in which they can be improved      Handbook on Crime and Technology Don Hummer, James M.
