meaningful calling The Art of Work illuminates the proven path for anyone who wants to embrace that calling and build a body of work they can be proud of Women and Leadership Lisa DeFrank-Cole, Sherylle J. Tan, 2021-01-13 Recipient of a 2022 Most Promising New Textbook Award from the Textbook Academic Authors Association TAA While women in the United States account for nearly half the workforce they continue to encounter unique personal social and structural dynamics as leaders Authors Lisa DeFrank Cole and Sherylle J Tan explore these dynamics and more in Women and Leadership Journey Towards Equity Grounded in leadership theory and research this text delves into the barriers and challenges women face on their leadership journeys including stereotypes bias inequality discrimination and domestic responsibilities The text includes several chapters devoted to strategies and tools for overcoming obstacles creating structural change and moving towards greater equity Out, 2003-02 Out is a fashion style celebrity and opinion magazine for the modern gay man The Comeback Emma Gilbey Keller, 2010-07-23 It's a tough economy for job seekers and it can be even more nerve racking for women trying to juggle career and family Women are used to being told that once we get off the career track we can't get back on In The Comeback Emma Gilbey Keller proves that this isn't true More and more companies today are looking at the value of hiring returning mothers In this encouraging book Keller tells the stories of seven very different women from a variety of professions who sought to strike a balance between demanding careers and budding families A new afterword looks at the personal balancing act of First Lady Michelle Obama All of these women have complicated stories filled with the choices decisions and trade offs that all mothers face An absorbing blend of story insight advice and inspiration The Comeback offers a positive message to mothers overwhelmed by the ever shifting work versus home debate Queer Career Margot Canaday, 2025-05-27 Historians have noted that gay identity is central to the history of capitalism but because of an assumption that workplaces were straight spaces in which queer people passed historians of sexuality have had almost nothing to say about work instead directing their attention to the street and to the bar This book presents employment and the accompanying fear of job loss as one of the most salient features of queer life for most of the twentieth century and looks at the political and legal developments of gay labor in the workplace alongside the histories of women's minorities and immigrants labor Starting midcentury with the Lavender Scare the federal government's massive purge of gay people from the Civil Service the book traces how workplaces opened to gay workers albeit unevenly over the second half of the twentieth century Drawing on a number of archival sources and interviews this is a history of the workplace that shows larger structural change while also giving voice to many underrepresented individuals Throughout Margot Canaday emphasizes the concept of precariousness a commonly deployed category within labor studies to designate that expanding category of workers in industrial societies who are detached from permanent standardized secure and protected employment While women and racial minorities also share this longer history of precarious work the LGBT experience was a particularly powerful precedent for the changing character of economic life at the end of the 20th century Despite that the book shows that workplaces were surprisingly responsive to demands from gay employees for protection and benefits Canada shows that business was out ahead of both the government and labor unions in offering antidiscrimination protection and domestic partner benefits to gay workers The final part of the book traces how gay rights came to be the most marketized privatized civil rights social movement and how we should consider the gay experience in the workplace not as marginal or atypical but as central and predictive for all workers
