Mergent Municipal & Government Manual ,2007 Assessment and Future Directions of Nonlinear Model Predictive Control Rolf Findeisen, Frank Allgöwer, Lorenz Biegler,2007-09-08 The past three decades have seen rapid development in the area of model predictive control with respect to both theoretical and application aspects Over these 30 years model predictive control for linear systems has been widely applied especially in the area of process control However today s applications often require driving the process over a wide region and close to the boundaries of operability while satisfying constraints and achieving near optimal performance Consequently the application of linear control methods does not always lead to satisfactory performance and here nonlinear methods must be employed This is one of the reasons why nonlinear model predictive control NMPC has enjoyed significant attention over the past years with a number of recent advances on both the theoretical and application frontier. Additionally, the widespread availability and steadily increasing power of today's computers as well as the development of specially tailored numerical solution methods for NMPC bring the practical applicability of NMPC within reach even for very fast systems. This has led to a series of new exciting developments along with new challenges in the area of NMPC.
