Rhetoric and the Digital Humanities Jim Ridolfo, William Hart-Davidson, 2015-01-19 The digital humanities is a rapidly growing field that is transforming humanities research through digital tools and resources. Researchers can now quickly trace every one of Isaac Newton's annotations, use social media to engage academic and public audiences in the interpretation of cultural texts and visualize travel via ox cart in third century Rome or camel caravan in ancient Egypt. Rhetorical scholars are leading the revolution by fully utilizing the digital toolbox, finding themselves at the nexus of digital innovation. Rhetoric and the Digital Humanities is a timely multidisciplinary collection that is the first to bridge scholarship in rhetorical studies and the digital humanities. It offers much needed guidance on how the theories and methodologies of rhetorical studies can enhance all work in digital humanities and vice versa. Twenty three essays over three sections delve into connections, research methodology and future directions in this field. Jim Ridolfo and William Hart-Davidson have assembled a broad group of more than thirty accomplished scholars. Read together, these essays represent the cutting edge of research, offering guidance that will energize and inspire future collaborations

Hollywood Goes Shopping David Desser, Garth Jowett, 2000 Aggressive product placement and retail tie-ins are as much a part of moviemaking today as high concept scripts and computer generated special effects, but this phenomenon is hardly recent. Since the silent era, Hollywood studios have proved remarkably adept at advertising both their own products and a bewildering variety of consumer commodities, successfully promoting the idea of consumption itself. Hollywood Goes Shopping brings together leading film studies scholars to explore the complex and sometimes contradictory relationship between American cinema and consumer culture, providing an innovative reading of both film history and the evolution of consumerism in the twentieth century

Liberating Language Shirley Wilson Logan, 2008-09-11 This book traces the ways that African Americans learned lessons in rhetoric through language based activities associated with black survival in nineteenth century America such as working in political organizations reading and publishing newspapers maintaining diaries and participating in literary societies It shows how rhetorical training was manifested through places of worship and military camps self education in oratory and elocution literary societies and the black press It also draws on the experiences of various black rhetors of the era such as Frederick Douglass Frances Harper Fanny Coppin Charles Chesnutt Ida B Wells and the lesser known Oberlin educated Mary Virginia Montgomery Virginia slave preacher Uncle Jack and former slave Mrs Lee The book also outlines nontraditional means of acquiring rhetorical skills and demonstrates how African Americans faced with the lingering consequences of enslavement acquired rhetorical competence Ralph Ellison and the Politics of the Novel William H. Rice, 2007-01-01 In this engaging study H William Rice illuminates the mystery that is Ralph Ellison the author of one complex important novel who failed to complete his second a black intellectual who remained notably reticent on political issues during the desegregation of his native South Rice reads both Invisible Man and the posthumously published Juneteenth as novels that focus on the political uses of language He explores Ellison s concept of the novel promulgated in that author s two collections of essays as an inherently political form of art And he carefully considers the political context that undoubtedly impacted Ellison s work and thought a world and a time rocked to its foundation by such revolutionary actors as Martin Luther King Jr and Malcolm X Rice guides his reader to a greater understanding of Ralph Ellison his oeuvre and the American novel The One vs. the Many Alex Woloch, 2009-02-09 Does a novel focus on one life or many Alex Woloch uses this simple question to develop a powerful new theory of the realist novel based on how narratives distribute limited attention among a crowded field of characters His argument has important implications for both literary studies and narrative theory Characterization has long been a troubled and neglected problem within literary theory Through close readings of such novels as Pride and Prejudice Great Expectations and Le P re Goriot Woloch demonstrates that the representation of any character takes place within a shifting field of narrative attention and obscurity Each individual whether the central figure or a radically subordinated one emerges as a character only through his or her distinct and contingent space within the narrative as a whole The character space as Woloch defines it marks the dramatic interaction between an implied person and his or her delimited position within a narrative structure The organization of and clashes between many character spaces within a single narrative totality is essential to the novel s very achievement and concerns striking at issues central to narrative poetics the aesthetics of realism and the dynamics of literary representation Woloch s discussion of character space allows for a different history of the novel and a new definition of characterization itself By making the implied person indispensable to our understanding of literary form this book offers a forward looking avenue for contemporary narrative theory
