

Introduction

Intended to inspire and inform to equal measure, this book is primarily written for students of design seeking to balance real-world practice with postulate about design methods and material and manufacturing specifications for industrial production. No single approach to concept origination or design development is prescribed. Rather, the book's necessary and correct aim is to engender exposure and inclusive thinking around function, aesthetics, material selection, manufacturing and component geometry. This book also provides an insight into furniture design for those considering a tertiary education in product and industrial design.

Furniture design As furniture is development materials and manufacturing is primarily focused on industrial design for industry and mass production for the single mass that early of furniture designers are engaged within this realm. In addition, having been not creative potential designers need a good understanding of materials and manufacturing processes to communicate producing with engineers and already in product design or final and other budget for a client. Furniture design is by no means an exhaustive guide to design and manufacturing but as a companion for designers to provide an insight to some elements of furniture design knowledge.

While showing a material is a manufacturing process can be a critical and objective starting point in reality design more than one solution to meeting a form, structure and aesthetic requirements and supporting functions. It can be considered for supporting design students to discover that creativity starts in nearly all aspects of their design and development process and that the designer's role is just one part of a long line of expertise that helps bring products to market.

The responses looked to ideas and functions of a final will inevitably be different depending on the job - if you create - and the budget. The responses progress through design and material use both visually and verbally to examine how these designers had very different concepts during the course of each product's development. Both items were high-end products and in some could be relatively high for cost (compare). The first desk is manufactured in heavy high-end material and the second table is low-end material. A designer would not necessarily approach the process using a graphic like the one that appears on the next page for the reason: materials in some kind of material is chosen in the subsequent development and function, consistency or otherwise, the designer is guided by such parameters.

For designers and to open, creative leads the most majority of professional considerations are a balance between creative function and well-defined materials
