Mapping Environmental Issues in the City Sébastien Caquard, Laurene Vaughan, William Cartwright, 2011-08-19 This book complements the growing body of literature exploring the relationships between arts and cartography It is distinct from the previous ones by its main focus The multiple ways of representing a database In the context of the exponential increase of the volume of geospatial data available addressing this issue becomes critical and has not yet received much attention Furthermore the content of the database environmental issues in the city gives a strong social and political texture to the project The expected audience for this book are academic as well as students interested in the relationships between art and cartography place and technology power and representations This book could serve as an inspiration for local groups and communities dealing with environmental injustice all over the world Finally at a local scale this book could become a major reference for individuals communities and institutions interested in environmental issues in the city of Montreal

The Future Is an Image John Calvelli, 2015-12-09 The image holds us in thrall like a cocoon wrapped around our being Each thread of this fantastic construction is a world we have imagined to be and together they comprise a seemingly safe and secure habitat in which we may live We live in worlds woven around other worlds which exist in the one world to which we are all unknowingly subject Earth where we store the all the entropy produced by the effects of our weaving Our cocoon of images won't protect us from our entropy Neither can we be assured that a benevolent metamorphosis will follow Yet we must fully engage with the image as the image is our future At a time when we know this future to be under threat it requires of us an understanding of its workings and of its use commensurate with its power Following an exploration of the history of unsustainability and of the concept of future Calvelli develops a theory of the image based in Catherine Malabou's concept of plasticity The image in plasticity is an aesthetic relational and transtemporal tool that can be used to open and shape a future in a transdisciplinary image making practice he calls the artefacture of wonder Daily Variety, 1963 Abstracts 2008 College Art Association (U.S.).
