EBOOK: Reshaping the University: New Relationships between Research, Scholarship and Teaching Ronald Barnett, 2005-09-16 What is the emerging shape of the University Are there spaces for present activities to be practised anew or even for new activities If these questions have force they show that the metaphors of shapes and spaces can be helpful in understanding the contemporary university Research teaching and scholarship remain the dominant activities in universities and so it is their relationships that form the main concerns of this volume Are these activities pulling apart from each other Or might these activities be brought more together in illuminating ways Is there space to redesign these activities so that they shed light on each other Is there room for yet other purposes In this volume a distinguished set of scholars engage with these pertinent but challenging issues Ideas are offered and evidence is marshalled of practices that suggest a re shaping of the University may be possible Reshaping the University appeals to those who are interested in the future of universities including students researchers managers and policy makers It also addresses global issues and it will therefore interest the higher education community worldwide Contributors Ronald Barnett David Dill Carol Bond Lewis Elton Mick Healey Mark Hughes Rajani Naidoo Mark Olssen Bruce Macfarlane Kathleen Nolan Jan Parker Michael Peters Alison Phipps Jane Robertson Peter Scott Stephen Rowland Hispanic Scholar Perspectives on Education and Wellbeing Villarreal, Angello, 2024-12-24 Listening to the voices and experiences of Hispanic and Latino scholars and practitioners fosters a deeper understanding of the unique challenges and strengths within these communities It helps develop more inclusive educational practices and mental health strategies that address their specific needs By supporting Hispanic and Latino students and promoting connections across ethnic groups these efforts contribute to greater equity opportunity and community cohesion This approach enriches society by valuing diversity and creating pathways for shared growth and understanding Hispanic Scholar Perspectives on Education and Wellbeing amplifies the voices and experiences of Hispanic and Latino scholars across the educational spectrum It also focuses on mental health specifically addressing Hispanic demographics and highlighting practicing counselors who can support the mental wellbeing of this community Covering topics such as cultural practices mental health and teacher wellbeing this book is an excellent resource for teachers administrators superintendents counselors mental health advocates curriculum and instruction professionals and more

EBOOK: Assessment, Learning And Employability Peter Knight, Mantz Yorke, 2003-10-16 What is assessed gets attention what is not assessed does not When higher education is expected to promote complex achievements in subject disciplines and in terms of employability problems arise how are such achievements to be assessed In the first part of the book it is argued that existing grading practices cannot cope with the expectations laid upon them while the potential of formative assessment for the support of learning is not fully realised The authors argue that improving the effectiveness of assessment depends on a well grounded appreciation of what assessment is and what may and may not be expected of it The second part covers summative judgements for high stakes purposes Using established measurement theory a view is developed of the conditions under which affordable useful valid and reliable summative judgements can be made One conclusion is that many complex achievements resist high stakes assessment which directs attention to low stakes essentially formative alternatives Assessment for learning and employability demands more than module level changes to assessment methods The final part discusses how institutions need to respond in policy terms to the challenges that have been posed The book concludes with a discussion of how institutions can respond in policy terms to the challenges that have been posed Assessment Learning and Employability has wide and practical relevance to teachers module and programme leaders higher education managers and quality enhancement specialists

Indigenous Teaching Disciplines and Perspectives for Higher Education Kgari-Masondo, Maserole Christina, 2025-03-28 Literature indicates that sociolinguists and educationists often claim multilingual practice and Africanizing and Indigenizing education will jeopardize national unity and social cohesion Such claims delay the implementation of decolonization policies and the transformation of the curriculum

under false assumptions However research reveals many Indigenous students struggle with higher educational content which is often presented through languages that are unfamiliar to them This implies that there is a need to uncover resources that can assist in necessitating the implementation of Indigenous education globally and that all multilingual strategies in education must be based on quality mother tongue illustrative content as its foundation As a result further research on the subject is necessary to enhance teaching strategies that reach all Indigenous students Indigenous Teaching Disciplines and Perspectives for Higher Education illustrates the need for the implementation of a decolonized teaching and learning curriculum with integrated resources as models It explores how to improve Indigenous knowledge content and teaching methods Covering topics such as cultural identity African research methodology and Indigenous media this book is an excellent resource for teachers policymakers school administrators researchers scholars academicians and more
