Cbu Application Form For 2015 Academic Year:

Global Governance and Rules for the Post-2015 Era Jose Antonio Alonso, José Antonio Ocampo, 2015-08-27 Attention is increasingly being paid to the conceptualization of the sustainable development agenda that should guide global development efforts beyond 2015. New trends are shaping the international environment suggesting that the world emerging from the recent economic and financial crisis will probably be very different from the one we have known so far. The emerging issues demand new concerted responses and new international efforts which will have to be framed by new rules and more democratic and inclusive mechanisms of global governance. Global Governance and Rules for the Post 2015 Era provides a unique assessment of global rules and governance, a reflection of how global rules have been shaping development experiences and outcomes, an identification of the shortcomings of current global governance mechanisms and innovative suggestions for reforming and improving them. The various chapters analyse whether current rules and governance structures enable the building of effective responses against international problems and promote a fair distribution of development opportunities among countries. This book is a timely contribution to the discussions on a new global development agenda undertaken under the leadership of the United Nations. It reflects the outcome of a research programme by a group of independent development experts brought together by the United Nations Committee for Development Policy (CDP), a subsidiary body of the Economic and Social Council. It will be of interest to policymakers, worldwide experts of international agencies, scholars, students and the wider public.

It presents invited papers from the inventors, originators of new applications and advanced technologies.

Direct Democracy Practices at the Local Level Premat, Christophe Emmanuel, 2022-02-18 Direct democracy or pure democracy is a concept spreading throughout the world now adopted by nearly 30 countries on the national level. While the concept is not new, it is important to investigate the current benefits or hinderances of direct democracy related to local governments so that they may be implemented further. Direct Democracy Practices at the Local Level deepens the knowledge of direct democracy in political science. This book explores how local governments utilize these instruments in international governments and analyzes a series of popular initiatives and local referenda to how successful these initiatives are. Covering topics such as religious rights, street committees and climate change, this book is essential for political science students and professors, policymakers, faculty, local governments, academicians and researchers in political science with an interest in direct democracy procedures in representative systems.

How to improve immune reconstitution in allogeneic hematopoietic stem cell transplantation? Antoine Toubert,Hermann Einsele,2015-03-12 Allogeneic haematopoietic stem cell transplantation allo HSCT is widely used in the treatment of haematological malignancies as a form of immunotherapy acting through a graft versus leukemia GvL reaction This curative allogeneic response can be associated with severe drawbacks such as frequent and severe graft versus host disease GvHD and a long lasting immunodeficiency especially now with the development of innovative strategies such as umbilical cord blood transplantation or transplants from haplo identical family donors Haplo HSCT In the long term follow up of these patients severe post transplant infections relapse or secondary malignancies may be directly related to persistent immune defects Reconstitution of the different lymphocyte populations B T NK NKT and antigen presenting cells of myeloid origin monocytes macrophages and dendritic cells should be considered not only quantitatively but especially qualitatively in terms of functional subsets Immune deficiency leading to an increased susceptibility to infections lasts for more than a year Although infections that occur in the first month mostly result from a deficiency in both granulocytes and mononuclear cells MNC later post engraftment infections are due to a deficiency in MNC subsets primarily CD4 T cells and B cells T cell reconstitution has been extensively studied because of the central role of T cells in mediating both GvHD evidenced by the reduced incidence of this complication following T Cell depletion and a GvL effect as shown by DLI In the recent years there has been renewed interest in the role of NK cells especially in the context of Haplo HSCT and in B cell reconstitution This Frontiers Research Topic will provide state of the art knowledge of the mechanisms of immune reconstitution in an allogeneic environment in order to improve monitoring and therapeutic intervention in allo HSCT patients
