Demolición en el agujero negro de la modernidad propone una nueva lectura sobre la demolición o abandono vs la conservación y reestructuración de proyectos de vivienda social con el objeto de mejorar los planes de intervención sobre entornos complejos. Complejos porque involucran una problemática de fondo que va más allá de la arquitectura y tiene que ver con sesgos raciales sociales políticos económicos. Por tanto es una investigación sobre proyectos arquitectónicos pero no se limita a ellos. A través de los proyectos de vivienda social Pruitt Igoe construido en 1954 y demolido en 1972 y Robin Hood Gardens construido en 1972 y propuesto para demolición en 2008 se estudia un período en el que la arquitectura moderna se enfrenta a demoliciones indiscriminadas sin reflexionar sobre sus consecuencias. As la arquitectura moderna es una especie de agujero negro.
