Care in the Past Lindsay Powell,William Southwell-Wright,Rebecca Gowland,2016-11-30 Care giving is an activity that has been practiced by all human societies From the earliest societies through to the present all humans have faced choices regarding how people in positions of dependency are to be treated As such care giving and the form it takes is a central experience of being a human and one that is culturally mediated Archaeology has tended to marginalise the study of care and debates surrounding our ability to recognise it within the archaeological record have often remained implicit rather than a focus of discussion These 12 papers examine the topic of care in past societies and specifically how we might recognise the provision of care in archaeological contexts and to open up an inter disciplinary conversation including historical bioarchaeological faunal and philosophical perspectives The topic of care is examined through three different strands the provision of care throughout the life course namely that provided to the youngest and oldest members of a society care giving and attitudes towards impairment and disability in prehistoric and historic contexts and the role of animals as both recipients of care and as tools for its provision

The Early Prehistory of Wadi Faynan, Southern Jordan Bill Finlayson, Steven Mithen, 2007-03-22 This edited volume provides a full report on the Pre Pottery Neolithic A site of WF16 southern Jordan Very few sites of PPNA date have been excavated using modern methods so this report makes a very significant contribution to our understanding of this period Excavations have shown that the site contains a highly dynamic use of architecture and the faunal assemblage reveals new information on the processes that lead to the domestication of the goat

Trends in Biological Anthropology 1 Karina Gerdau-Radonić, Kathleen McSweeney, 2015-06-30 This first volume in the series Trends in Biological Anthropology presents 11 papers The study of modern baboons as proxies to understand extinct hominin species diet and the interpretation of skeletal degenerative joint disease on the skeletal remains of extant primates are presented as case studies using methods and standards usually applied to human remains The methodological theme continues with an assessment of the implications for interpretation of different methods used to record Linear Enamel Hypoplasia LEH and on the use and interpretation of three dimensional modeling to generate pictures of the content of collective graves Three case studies on palaeopathology are presented First is the analysis of a 5th 16th century skeletal collection from the Isle of May compared with one from medieval Scotland in an attempt to ascertain whether the former benefitted from a healing tradition Study of a cranium found at Verteba Cave western Ukraine provides a means to understand interpersonal interactions and burial ritual during the Trypillian culture A series of skulls from Belgrade Serbia displays evidence for beheading Two papers focus on the analysis disarticulated human remains at the Worcester Royal Infirmary and on Thomas Henry Huxley s early attempt to identify a specific individual through analysis of skeletal remains The concept and definition of perimortem particularly within a Forensic Anthropology context are examined and the final paper presents a collaborative effort between historians archaeologists museum officers medieval re enactors and food scientists to encourage healthy eating among present day Britons by presenting the ill effects of certain dietary habits on the human skeleton

The Osteology and Taphonomy of Ancient Egyptian Human Remains Pamela C. Gamboa, 2025-04-08 The Osteology and Taphonomy of Ancient Egyptian Human Remains analyzes several Egyptological studies and addresses potential knowledge gaps in the areas of osteology paleopathology archaeoethnology and taphonomy that may be affecting the interpretation of the findings in the following cases The osteological and paleopathological findings from the commoners excavated at Amarna that claim these were the remains of a starved and exploited population The age determination identification and possible perimortem injuries of the individual from tomb KV55 The body positions of Unknown Man E and Unknown Woman A together with the identification and determined cause of death of Unknown Man E The taphonomic changes of a Greco Roman mummy are also discussed The methodology and different aspects of the identification of the individual KV60 A identified as Hatshepsut including sex determination and original arm position Dental appliances so called dental bridges and their possible use The purpose of this investigation is to uncover the origins and rationale behind the conclusions in the afore mentioned studies and offer alternative explanations for the phenomena encountered in them which align with the author s areas of expertise that encompass osteology paleopathology archaeothanatology and taphonomy

The Juvenile Skeleton Louise Scheuer, Sue Black, 2004-04-02 The identification of even the smallest human fetal bone can be vital to the success of a criminal investigation or to the identification of the deceased This book examines every bone in the human body from its earliest embryological stage through to maturity and is profusely illustrated with superb bone drawings at every stage of development The ability to identify every component of the developing skeleton is of core relevance not only to the forensic profession but also to clinicians skeletal biologists and physical anthropologists Identifies every component of the developing skeleton Provides detailed analysis of juvenile skeletal remains and the development of bone as a tissue Summarizes key morphological stages in the development of every bone

Children, Death and Burial Eileen Murphy, Mélie Le Roy, 2017-08-31 Children Death and Burials assembles a panorama of studies with a focus on juvenile burials the 16 papers have a wide geographic and temporal breadth and represent a range of methodological approaches All have a similar objective in mind however namely to understand how children were treated in death by different cultures in the past to gain insights concerning the roles of children of different ages in their respective societies and to find evidence of the nature of past adult child relationships and interactions across the life course The contextualisation and integration of the data collected both in the field and in the laboratory enables more nuanced understandings to be gained in relation to the experiences of the young in the past A broad range of issues are addressed within the volume including the inclusion exclusion of children in particular burial environments and the impact of age in relation to the place of children in society Child burials clearly embody identity and the domestic child the vulnerable child the high status child the cherished child the potential child the ritual child and the political child and combinations thereof are evident throughout the narratives Investigation of the burial practices afforded to children is pivotal to enlightenment in relation to key facets of past life including the emotional responses shown towards children during life and in death as well as an understanding of their place within the social strata and ritual activities of their societies An important new collection of papers by leading researchers in funerary archaeology examining the particular treatment of juvenile burials in the past In particular focuses on the expression of varying status and identity of children in the funerary archaeological record as a key to understanding the place of children in different societies St

Albans Abbey: The Excavation of the Chapter House 1978 Martin Biddle,Birthe Kjølbye-Biddle,Megan

Kirkpatrick,Francis M. Morris,2024-06-13 Excavations at the site of the medieval chapter house of St Albans Abbey in 1978 uncovered fragments of decorated floor tiles of the Anglo Saxon abbey and associated burials along with the magnificent floor of relief decorated tiles of the medieval chapter house and the graves of 16 known figures of the late 11th to 15th century abbey The Amesbury Archer and the Boscombe Bowmen A. P. Fitzpatrick,2013-11-01 Found a few kilometres from Stonehenge the graves of the Amesbury Archer and the Boscombe Bowmen date to the 24th century BC and are two of the earliest Bell Beaker graves in Britain The Boscombe Bowmen is a collective burial and the Amesbury Archer is a single burial but isotope analyses suggest that both were the graves of incomers to Wessex The objects placed in both graves have strong continental connections and the metalworking tool found in the grave of the Amesbury Archer may explain why his mourners afforded him one of the most well furnished burials yet found in Europe This excavation report contains a series of wide ranging studies and scientific analyses by an array of experts and a discussion of the graves within their British and continental European contexts Stonehenge in its Landscape K E Walker,R Montague,R M J Cleal Cleal,2014-06-30 This volume represents a detailed discussion of the structural history of Stonehenge arrived at by the integration of evidence from primary records of excavations carried out between 1901 and 1964 These major campaigns of excavation and recording include those of Prof William Gowland 1901 Lt Col William Hawley 1919 26 Profs Stuart Piggott and Richard Atkinson with J F Stone 1950 53 5 56 58 and 64 and some smaller previously unpublished campaigns as well as more recent small scale excavations which are already published The evidence for the use of the monument from the Middle Neolithic to the present day is discussed in terms of its landscape and social settings The evidence for the rephasing of the monument including artefactual and ecofactual assemblages details of the radiocarbon dating programme geophysical surveys transcripts of all available field plans sections and stone elevations is presented together with a variety of summary lists concordances and a guide to the site archive A new suite of radiocarbon determinations has been obtained which redefines our understanding of the sequence of construction and use of the monument and augments the surviving archaeological evidence A Neolithic and Bronze Age Landscape in Northamptonshire Jan Harding,Frances Healy,2013-01-15 The Raunds Area Project investigated more than 20 Neolithic and Bronze Age monuments in the Nene Valley From c 5000 BC to the early 1st millennium cal BC a succession of ritual mounds and burial mounds were built as settlement along the valley sides increased and woodland was cleared Starting as a regular stopping place for flint knapping and domestic tasks first the Long Mound and then Long Barrow the north part of the Turf Mound and the Avenue were built in the 5th millennium BC With the addition of the Long Enclosure the Causewayed Ring Ditch and the Southern Enclosure there was a chain of five or six diverse monuments stretched along the river bank by c 3000 cal BC Later a timber platform the Riverside Structure was built and the focus of ceremonial activity shifted to the Cotton Henge two concentric ditches on the occupied valley side From c 2200 cal BC monument building accelerated and included the Segmented Ditch Circle and at least 20 round barrows almost all containing burials at first inhumations then cremations down to c 1000 cal BC by which time two overlapping systems of paddocks and droveways had been laid out Finally the terrace began to be settled when these had gone out of use in the early 1st millennium cal BC
