

1. The Network, IP, and the Internet

1.1. Hosts and Functions of Network Components

1.1.1. Hosts

Hosts: Devices connected to the network that can communicate with other devices. They represent the endpoints of the network (e.g., servers, routers, PCs, etc.).

Functions:

- Packet Forwarding: Routers determine the best path for packets and forward them to the next hop.
- Network Address Translation (NAT): Routers perform NAT to allow multiple devices on a local network to share a single public IP address.
- Access Control: Routers implement access control lists (ACLs) to filter traffic and enforce security policies.

1.1.2. Layer 1 and Layer 2 Routers

Layer 1 (Physical) Routers: Operate at the physical layer (Layer 1) and are responsible for forwarding traffic based on MAC addresses. Layer 2 Routers (Switches) operate at the Data Link Layer (Layer 2) and forward traffic based on IP addresses.

Functions:

- Layer 1 Forwarding: Focuses on the physical layer, forwarding traffic based on MAC addresses, using broadcast domains.
- Layer 2 Forwarding: Focuses on the data link layer, forwarding traffic based on MAC addresses, using broadcast domains.

1.1.3. Network Address Translation (NAT) and IP

Hosts: Network Address Translation (NAT) is a process that translates private IP addresses into public IP addresses, allowing multiple devices on a local network to share a single public IP address.

Functions:

- IP Address: A 32-bit numerical label used to identify devices on a network. It is used for routing traffic and identifying the source and destination of data.
- NAT: A process that translates private IP addresses into public IP addresses, allowing multiple devices on a local network to share a single public IP address.
