Medicine, Health and Medicine Division, Board on Population Health and Public Health Practice, Committee to Review the Health Effects in Vietnam Veterans of Exposure to Herbicides (Eleventh Biennial Update), 2019-01-20 From 1962 to 1971 the U S military sprayed herbicides over Vietnam to strip the thick jungle canopy that could conceal opposition forces to destroy crops that those forces might depend on and to clear tall grasses and bushes from the perimeters of US base camps and outlying fire support bases Mixtures of 2,4-dichlorophenoxyacetic acid (2,4-D) and 2,4,5-trichlorophenoxyacetic acid (2,4,5-T) picloram and cacodylic acid made up the bulk of the herbicides sprayed The main chemical mixture sprayed was Agent Orange a 50:50 mixture of 2,4-D and 2,4,5-T At the time of the spraying 2,3,7,8-tetrachlorodibenzo-p-dioxin (TCDD) the most toxic form of dioxin was an unintended contaminant generated during the production of 2,4,5-T and so was present in Agent Orange and some other formulations sprayed in Vietnam Because of complaints from returning Vietnam veterans about their own health and that of their children combined with emerging toxicologic evidence of adverse effects of phenoxy herbicides and TCDD the National Academies of Sciences Engineering and Medicine was asked to perform a comprehensive evaluation of scientific and medical information regarding the health effects of exposure to Agent Orange other herbicides used in Vietnam and the various components of those herbicides including TCDD Updated evaluations were conducted every two years to review newly available literature and draw conclusions from the overall evidence Veterans and Agent Orange Update 11 2018 examines peer reviewed scientific reports concerning associations between various health outcomes and exposure to TCDD and other chemicals in the herbicides used in Vietnam that were published between September 30 2014 and December 31 2017 and integrates this information with the previously established evidence database Drinking Water Quality and Human Health Patrick Levallois, Cristina Villanueva Belmonte, 2019-04-04 The quality of drinking water is paramount for public health Despite important improvements in the last decades access to safe drinking water is not universal The World Health Organization estimates that almost 10% of the population in the world do not have access to improved drinking water sources Among other diseases waterborne infections cause diarrhea which kills nearly one million people every year mostly children under 5 years of age On the other hand chemical pollution is a concern in high income countries and an increasing problem in low and middle income countries Exposure to chemicals in drinking water may lead to a range of chronic non communicable diseases e g cancer cardiovascular disease adverse reproductive outcomes and effects on children s health e g neurodevelopment among other health effects Although drinking water quality is regulated and monitored in many countries increasing knowledge leads to the need for reviewing standards and guidelines on a nearly permanent basis both for regulated and newly identified contaminants Drinking water standards are mostly based on animal toxicity data and more robust epidemiologic studies with accurate exposure assessment are needed The current risk assessment paradigm dealing mostly with one by one chemicals dismisses the potential synergisms or interactions from exposures to mixtures of contaminants particularly at the low exposure range Thus evidence is needed on exposure and health effects of mixtures of contaminants in drinking water Finally water stress and water quality problems are expected to increase in the coming years due to climate change and increasing water demand by population growth and new evidence is needed to design appropriate adaptation policies This Special Issue of International Journal of Environmental Research and Public Health IJERPH focuses on the current state of knowledge on the links between drinking water quality and human health

Effectiveness and Satisfaction in Antenatal Care M. Enkin, I. Chalmers, 1982-04-22 The potential contribution of antenatal care to health is enormous However if this potential is to be fully realised the content and organisation of that care must be more imaginatively conceived and realised and must take into account the uncomfortable paradox that antenatal care is a mixture of science and magic This book faces that paradox asking what in antenatal care has been shown by proper scientific method to work what is questionable dogma what is magic what should be done now This volume is intended not only for those professionals giving the care and for the potential mothers receiving it but also for all those who influence decisions concerning the future of antenatal care such as politicians researchers and the public in general
