Chadwick, Darren Shickle, H.A. Ten Have, Urban Wiesing, 2013-03-09 This collection of essays represents the work produced in the course of a three year project funded by the Commission of the European Communities under the Biomed I programme on the ethics of genetic screening entitled Genetic screening ethical and philosophical perspectives with special reference to multifactorial diseases The short title of the project was Euroscreen thereafter known as Euroscreen I in the light of the fact that a second project on genetic screening was subsequently funded The project was multinational and multidisciplinary and had as its objectives to examine the nature and extent of genetic screening programmes in different European countries to analyse the social policy response to these developments in different countries and to explore the applicability of normative ethical frameworks to the issues The project was led by a core group who had oversight of the project and members of which have acted as editors for this volume Darren Shickle edited the first section Henk ten Have the second Ruth Chadwick and Urban Wiesing the third and final part The volume opens with an overview of genetic screening and the principles available for addressing developments in the field with special reference to the Wilson and Jungner principles on screening The first of the three major sections thereafter includes papers on the state of the art in different countries together with some analysis of social context and policy The Concise Encyclopedia of the Ethics of New Technologies, 2000-11-06 The ethical assessment of new technologies raises two principal concerns the need to develop effective policies and legislation and the reconsideration of the ethical frameworks in which these policies and laws are developed The importance of rapid accurate examinations of tensions between Philosophy and Law and the relationship between philosophical principles and empirical data has never been greater The Concise Encyclopedia of Ethics of New Technologies includes 23 articles previously published in the highly acclaimed Encyclopedia of Applied Ethics nine updated articles and five new articles commissioned especially for this volume Over half of the previously published articles include updated facts and bibliographic citations Authors of genetics articles have updated their works to include the most recent developments and publications New articles include Cloning Geneticization Health Technology Assessment Intrinsic and Instrumental Value and Novel Foods Articles fall into these subject categories Medical Ethics Scientific Ethics Theories of Ethics Environmental Ethics Legal Ethics Ethical Concepts

Food Ethics Ben Mepham, 2012-10-02 None of us can avoid being interested in food Our very existence depends on the supply of safe nutritious foods It is then hardly surprising that food has become the focus of a wide range of ethical concerns Is the food we buy safe Is it produced by means which respect the welfare of animals and sustain the land Are modern biotechnologies employed in food production immoral This book addresses such issues by applying ethical principles to many areas of current concern The contributors provide original and thought provoking treatments of a number of highly topical issues from global hunger and its ethical implications to the cultural habits affecting consumption This interdisciplinary study will prove to be essential reading for all those concerned with food as professionals students or consumers

Illness Narratives in Practice: Potentials and Challenges of Using Narratives in Health-related Contexts Gabriele Lucius-Hoene, Christine Holmberg, Thorsten Meyer, 2018-10-04 What is it like to live with an illness How do diagnostic procedures treatments and other encounters with medical institutions affect a patient's private and social life By asking these types of questions illness narratives have gained a reputation as a scientific domain in medicine in the last thirty years Today a patient's story plays an important role in doctor patient communication and the development of a healing relationship However whereas patient experiences have been well acknowledged methodologically reflected upon and widely collected as research data less consideration has been invested in exploring how they work in practice Used in the context of diagnosis treatment and teaching patient stories give us a new perspective on how healthcare could be improved

Illness Narratives in Practice: Potentials and Challenges of Using Narratives in Health related Contexts highlights the problems challenges and opportunities we face when using patient perspectives in practice and research in a clear format to provide readers with a comprehensive overview of this field It investigates the epistemological foundations and communicational properties of illness narratives as well as the pragmatic effects of using them as clinical and educational instruments Significantly it presents new examples from patient intakes and interviews that illustrate the disparity in communication between patients and medical professionals The studies in this book also evaluate the experiences of medical practitioners and students who consciously use patient narratives as a tool for improved communication and diagnosis Divided into eight

sections with practical examples for medical teaching and practice this book covers the use of patient narratives in communication training and decision making across medicine and psychotherapy In addition it reflects on the ethical aspects of working with a patient s personal experience of their illness reports on cultural differences across the globe and analyses how patients stories are used in politics and the media Written by scholars from multiple disciplines across clinical and theoretical fields this rich resource provides a critical stance on the use of narratives in medical research education and practice
