Research and Fieldwork in Development Daniel Hammett, Chasca Twyman, Mark Graham, 2014-12-08. Research and Fieldwork in Development explores both traditional and cutting edge research methods from interviews and ethnography to spatial data and digital methods. Each chapter provides the reader with an understanding of the theoretical basis of research methods, reflects upon their practice and outlines appropriate analysis techniques. The text also provides a cutting edge focus on the role of new media and technologies in conducting research. The final chapters return to a set of broader concerns in development research, providing a new and dynamic set of engagements with ethics and risk in fieldwork, integrating methods and engaging development research methods with knowledge exchange practices. Each chapter is supported by several case studies written by global experts within the field, documenting encounters and experiences and linking theory to practice. Each chapter is also complimented by an end of chapter summary, suggestions for further reading and websites and questions for further reflection and practice. The text critically locates development research within the field of international development to give an accessible and comprehensive introduction to development research methods. This book provides an invaluable overview to the practice of international development research and serves as an essential resource for undergraduate and postgraduate student embarking on development fieldwork. It is supported by online resources including extended bibliographies for each chapter, example risk and ethic forms, example policy briefing notes, research reports, links to websites and data sources.

The Asian Megacity Region Debnath Mookherjee, 2020-04-11 This book argues that close and disciplined scrutiny of the Asian megacity regions is of critical importance to understanding Asian urbanization However any approach to studying these regions must adopt a multi dimensional and trans urban perspective otherwise we Without such an approach we cannot truly make meaningful decisions about growth management and sustainable development for such regions Amidst the sweeping demographic and structural shifts produced by global urbanization Asian urbanization has a fascinating and prominent role Asian urbanization is heterogeneous and more accurately constitutes phenomena than a phenomenon However despite this diversity there are certain common features that we can identify One of them is the Asian megacity region the administrative and or delineated territory of mixed urban rural landscape surrounding a giant metropolis

The purpose of this book is to Understand the main features of 21st century urbanization Note the limitations of current approaches e g disparate scales city centric views inadequate data sets Articulate a pragmatically framed three pronged approach scale based trans urban multi dimensional Demonstrate the application of such an approach with a case study of one of the most important megacity regions in South Asia the Delhi National Capital Region underscoring the methodological requirements of such an approach Discuss the next steps for the field as a whole questions to be raised and directions to be explored for further study This timely conceptual and empirical book will appeal to students of urbanization architects involved in urban policy and planning and researchers alike
