Capital and the Cosmos Peter Dickens,2023-01-01 This book offers a new understanding of society's relations with the cosmos Entrepreneurs such as Jeff Bezos and Elon Musk receive a great deal of publicity but offer unlikely and implausible visions of space tourism for the general public Meanwhile asteroids are seen as rare materials which will be extracted and used to produce untold riches for earthbound citizens The reality is rather different First there is no evidence that owners of capital are attempting to extract rare materials in the cosmos The costs would be out of this world But capital not governments is determining how outer space should be used Capital's investments in aerospace companies are actively determining forms of military interventions and the equipment used And satellite television pumps out forms of culture aimed at a global audience But these are being ignored and subverted by for example indigenous peoples In short this book sets out a new understanding of our relations with the cosmos The forces of capital are certainly powerful but at the same time they are being challenged subverted and even overturned

What Stays in Vegas Adam Tanner, 2014-09-02. The greatest threat to privacy today is not the NSA but good old American companies. Internet giants, leading retailers, and other firms are voraciously gathering data with little oversight from anyone. In Las Vegas, no company knows the value of data better than Caesars Entertainment. Many thousands of enthusiastic clients pour through the ever-open doors of their casinos. The secret to the company's success lies in their one unrivaled asset: they know their clients intimately by tracking the activities of the overwhelming majority of gamblers. They know exactly what games they like to play, what foods they enjoy for breakfast, when they prefer to visit, who their favorite hostess might be, and exactly how to keep them coming back for more. Caesars' dogged data-gathering methods have been so successful that they have grown to become the world's largest casino operator and have inspired companies of all kinds to ramp up their own data mining in the hopes of boosting their targeted marketing efforts. Some do this themselves. Some rely on data brokers. Others clearly enter a moral gray zone that should make American consumers deeply uncomfortable. We live in an age when our personal information is harvested and aggregated, whether we like it or not. And it is growing ever more difficult for those businesses that choose not to engage in more intrusive data gathering to compete with those that do. Tanner's timely warning resounds: Yes, there are many benefits to the free flow of all this data, but there is a dark, unregulated, and destructive netherworld as well.
