China's Strategic Modernization Mark A. Stokes,1999 China's Strategic Modernization Mark A. Stokes,1999-09
Conventional wisdom portrays the People s Republic of China PRC people s Liberation Army PLA as a backward continental force that will not pose a military challenge to its neighbors or to the United States well into the 21st century PLA writings that demonstrate interest in exploiting the revolution in military affairs RMA are dismissed by a large segment of the PLA watching community as wistful fantasies Major Mark A Stokes assistant air attache in Beijing from 1992 1995 offers an alternative perspective In this study funded by the United States Air Force Institute for National Security Studies he outlines emerging PLA operational concepts and a range of research and development projects that appear to have been heavily influenced by U S and Russian writings on the RMA Fulfillment of the PLA s vision for the 21st century could have significant repercussions for U S interests in the Asia Pacific region Major Stokes ventures into facets of PLA modernization that are often ignored Backed by extensive documentation he argues that the revolutionary modernization of the PRC s telecommunications infrastructure a robust space air and ground based sensor network and prioritization of electronic attack systems could enable the PLA to gain information dominance in future armed conflicts around its periphery Information dominance would be further boosted by China s traditional emphasis on information denial and deception China's Strategic Modernization Mark A. Stokes,1999-01-01 *China's Strategic Modernization: Implications For The United States... U.S. Department Of Defense National Defense University,1999 Documentary annex, report to Congress of the U.S.-China Security Review Commission U.S.-China Security Review Commission,2002 Future Trends in East Asian International Relations Quansheng Zhao,2014-03-18 The world has undergone significant change since the end of the Cold War One such development is that the Asia Pacific has become increasingly prominent in international affairs This comprehensive study provides a detailed understanding of key issues actors and future trends in the region Chinese Warfighting: The PLA Experience since 1949 Mark A. Ryan,David M. Finkelstein,Michael A. McDevitt,CNA Corporation,2016-04-29 This is the first systematic study of modern China s military campaigns and the actual fighting conducted by the People s Liberation Army since the founding of the People s Republic It provides a general overview of the evolution of PLA military doctrine and then focuses on major combat episodes from the civil war with the Nationalists to the last significant combat in Vietnam in 1979 in addition to navy and air operations through 1999 In contrast to the many works on the specifics and hardware of China s military modernization this book discusses such topics as military planning command and control fighting and politics combat tactics and performance technological catch up and doctrinal flexibility the role of Mao Zedong scale and typologies of fighting and deterrence The contributors include scholars from Mainland China Taiwan and the United States who draw from a wealth of fresh archival sources China's Growing Military Power: Perspectives on Security, Ballistic Missiles, and Conventional Capabilities Andrea Scobell,Larry M. Wortzel, The tenor of U S

China relations for much of the first year of the administration of President George Bush Bush was set by a crisis that need not have occurred How the situation was handed and eventually resolved is instructive It tells us about beleaguered communist leadership in the buildup to major generational transition scheduled for late 2002 and early 2003 and the mettle of a democratically elected U S government tested early in its tenure by a series of foreign policy crisis and a carefully coordinated set of devastating terrorist strikes against the continental United States Chinese Civil-Military Relations

Nan Li,2010-04-05 This new book addresses three key issues What has changed in Chinese civil military relations What can account for changes And what are the implications for Chinese security policy and strategic behaviour It tackles these questions by sharply assessing civil military dynamics in elite politics such dynamics in national security and arms control policy relations between commanders and political commissars relations between the PLA and society civil military dynamics regarding defence economics and logistics and such dynamics regarding dual use technologies and defence industry These analyses build into the central theme that the emphasis of Chinese civil military relations is shifting from politics to military tasks This is an extremely important new development by a nation many predict to become a super power in the twenty first century This is therefore essential reading for all students and scholars of strategic and security studies Chinese studies and international relations US Taiwan Policy Øystein Tunsjø,2008-02-18 The relationship between the United States and

China is one of the most important issues in the twenty first century and is ultimately hostage to conditions across the Taiwan Strait This book is the first to attempt to trace the historical origin of what is known as the Taiwan issue in US China relations from a constructivist perspective based on detailed archival research The analysis used supplements the mainstream rationalist approach by developing a new theoretical perspective on US Taiwan policy that incorporates constructivism s emphasis on identity norms and discourse analysis Scholars have never previously developed or elaborated upon this approach to any significant extent The book re examines the protection of Taiwan by military means following the outbreak of the Korean War and the establishment of the one China policy in relation to the process of rapprochement during President Nixon s first term in office It also considers the contemporary challenges posed to the one China policy by the increased importance of promoting human rights and democracy in US foreign policy arguing that the current US China policy is guided by a new strategy based on engagement plus hedging Cooperative Threat Reduction, Missile Defense and the Nuclear Future M. Krepon,2003-01-17 In this book Michael Krepon analyzes nuclear issues such as missile defenses space warfare and treaties and argues that the United States is on a dangerous course During the Cold War Mutual Assured Destruction or MAD facilitated strategic arms control Now that the Cold War has been replaced by asymmetric warfare treaties based on nuclear overkill and national vulnerability are outdated and must be adapted to a far different world A new strategic concept of Cooperative Threat Reduction is needed to replace MAD A balance is needed that combines military might with strengthened treaty regimes Beyond the Strait ,2009 China s People s Liberation Army PLA has undergone a staggering transformation to become a more mobile and high tech military force with increased number and variety of missions at home and abroad in addition to its traditional focus on contingencies in the Taiwan Strait Increased missions have included disaster and humanitarian relief United Nations peacekeeping operations counterterrorism cyber security and anti piracy This volume explores the direction the PLA will take in pursuing its new missions and how those missions affect the evolution of the PLA s objectives and capabilities whether new PLA doctrines will emerge and how they will affect the security of the Asia Pacific and beyond

US-Chinese Strategic Triangles S. Mahmud Ali,2017-06-07 This book reveals the nature of Sino US strategic competition by examining the influence exerted by major secondary stakeholders e g Japan Russia India the Koreas and ASEAN on the two powers USA and its rival China who consider each other as a source of greatest challenges to their respective interests By adopting strategic triangles as the analytical framework and assessing triangular relational dynamics such as US China Japan or US China Russia the author illustrates how secondary stakeholders advance their own interests by exploiting their respective linkages to the two rivals thereby shaping Sino US competitive dynamics This work adds a regional and multivariable perspective to the understanding of the Indo Pacific s insecurity challenges

China and East Asian Strategic Dynamics Mingjiang Li,Dongmin Lee,2011-07-16 China and East Asian Strategic Dynamics the Shaping of a New Regional Order edited by Mingjiang Li and Dongmin Lee examines how China s remarkable economic growth and its proactive diplomatic efforts in recent years have not only shored up its importance in global issues but also induced a transformation of the strategic dynamics in East Asia The authors argue that major power relations in the region appear to be driven by some new momentum along with the changing international environment The contributors of this edited volume are well known scholars in their areas of specialty and the book is divided into five parts The first part discusses China s soft and hard power in East Asia The second examines China and the strategic interactions between major powers this particular section is devoted to discussion on the strategic responses of the major regional powers the United States Japan Korea India and ASEAN to China s rise Part three focuses on China s strategic approach to East Asian regionalism Of particular note are China s active leadership role in institution building efforts strategic calculations and preference for an informal approach The fourth section analyzes the Cross Taiwan Strait relations and their impact on both China and East Asia The final section of China and East Asian Strategic Dynamics addresses the issue of China and maritime order in East Asia China and East Asian Strategic Dynamics the Shaping of a New Regional Order edited by Mingjiang Li and Dongmin Lee is a pioneering work Given that the rise of China is a prominent issue in politics and economics worldwide this edited collection is essential for a wide audience of policy makers academics and students alike

Report to Congress of the U.S.-China Security Review Commission U.S.-China Security Review Commission,2002

Nuclear China: A Veiled Secret ,2014-07-15 China has undergone a protracted stint in the nuclear domain from the time when Mao Zedong derided the bomb as a paper tiger in 1946 to the development of modern nuclear weapons and missiles making it only obligatory to chronicle the policy changes within China that steered the leadership towards grasping that nuclear weapons will fundamentally redefine China's quest for security. The Chinese leadership's nationalistic ideology and concepts of force and diplomacy shaped its perceptions of the enduring dangers that confronted China. Initially Beijing's political corridors dismissed the dangers of a nuclear war while reaffirming the principles of a people's war; however, later witnessed Mao recasting the struggle into one with a military technical emphasis that relied on assured nuclear retaliation to ensure effective deterrence. With China seeing a massive amount of political guanxi being expended, it comprehended that nuclear weapons shall play a fundamental role in its long term aspirations to augment its position and role in global politics. Given that nuclear arsenals are increasingly viewed as a critical assurance of military supremacy and security, this book distills the evolving trends in China's nuclear doctrine and strategy and chronicles the journey of a nuclear China assessing all pertaining facets including a detailed analysis of the delivery vectors that focus on a high degree of mobility of assets, particularly the missiles and warheads separately as well as complete weapon systems. During the 1960s Beijing proceeded with its nuclear weapons programme mindful that it was vulnerable to decapitation and this book's narrative underscores that China seeks to improve the survivability and mobility of its existing strategic nuclear forces through a robust nuclear modernisation campaign including nuclear weapon miniaturisation technology. This subsequently leads onto a pressing debate on whether China would aspire to modify qualitatively and quantitatively its nuclear posture without necessarily deposing its brand of nuclear minimalism which has been the core of its nuclear strategy at least for public consumption.

China's Rising Sea Power Peter Howarth, 2006-04-18 This is a fascinating insight into China's strategic abilities and ambitions probing the real depths of its plans for the twenty first century. China's Rising Sea Power explores similarities between China's strategic outlook today and that of earlier continental powers whose submarine fleets challenged dominant maritime powers for regional hegemony: Germany in two World Wars and the Soviet Union during the Cold War. Using insights from classical naval strategic theory, Peter Howarth examines Beijing's strategic logic in making tactical submarines the keystone of China's naval force structure. He also investigates the influence of Soviet naval strategy and ancient Chinese military thought on the PLA Navy's strategic culture, contending that China's increasingly capable submarine fleet could play a key role in Beijing's use of force to resolve the Taiwan issue. This book will be of great interest to all students and scholars of security and strategic studies, Asian politics, geopolitics and military naval strategy.

Weapons of Mass Destruction Eric A. Croddy, James J. Wirtz, Jeffrey A. Larsen, 2004-12-22 The first accessible reference to cover the history, context, current issues and key concepts surrounding biological, chemical and nuclear weapons. A collection of information on everything from aerosols to zones of peace, these two volumes cover historical background, technology and strategic implications of biological, chemical and nuclear weapons, thus providing facts, terms and context needed to participate in contemporary policy debate. This encyclopedia is the only comprehensive reference dedicated to the three types of weapons of mass destruction. With over 500 entries arranged alphabetically volume one covers biological and chemical weapons while volume two focuses on nuclear weapons Experts from eight countries cover issues related to these weapons policies strategies technologies delivery vehicles arms control concepts treaties and key historical figures and locations Entries are written to make difficult concepts easy to understand by cutting through military and scientific jargon Students lay readers scientists and government policy makers are provided with the broad range of information needed to place today's policy discussions in proper strategic or historical context

Trading with the Enemy Hugo Meijer, 2016-03-01 In light of the intertwining logics of military competition and economic interdependence at play in US China relations Trading with the Enemy examines how the United States has balanced its potentially conflicting national security and economic interests in its relationship with the People's Republic of China PRC To do so Hugo Meijer investigates a strategically sensitive yet under explored facet of US China relations the making of American export control policy on military related technology transfers to China since 1979 Trading with the Enemy is the first monograph on this dimension of the US China relationship in the post Cold War Based on 199 interviews declassified documents and diplomatic cables leaked by Wikileaks two major findings emerge from this book First the US is no longer able to apply a strategy of military technology containment of China in the same way it did with the Soviet Union during the Cold War This is because of the erosion of its capacity to restrict the transfer of military related technology to the PRC Secondly a growing number of actors in Washington have reassessed the nexus between national security and economic interests at stake in the US China relationship by moving beyond the Cold War trade off between the two in order to maintain American military preeminence vis vis its strategic rivals By focusing on how states manage the heterogeneous and potentially competing security and economic interests at stake in a bilateral relationship this book seeks to shed light on the evolving character of interstate rivalry in a globalized economy where rivals in the military realm are also economically interdependent

The Fallacies of Cold War Deterrence and a New Direction Keith B. Payne, 2014-07-11 In 1938 Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain hoped that a policy of appeasement would satisfy Adolf Hitler's territorial appetite and structured British policy accordingly This plan was a failure chiefly because Hitler was not a statesman who would ultimately conform to familiar norms Chamberlain's policy was doomed because he had greatly misjudged Hitler's basic beliefs and thus his behavior U S Cold War nuclear deterrence policy was similarly based on the confident but questionable assumption that Soviet leaders would be rational by Washington's standards they would behave reasonably when presented with nuclear threats The United States assumed that any sane challenger would be deterred from severe provocations because not to do so would be foolish Keith B Payne addresses the question of whether this line of reasoning is adequate for the post Cold War period By analyzing past situations and a plausible future scenario a U S Chinese crisis over Taiwan he proposes that American policymakers move away from the assumption that all our opponents are comfortably predictable by the standards of our own culture In order to avoid unexpected and possibly disastrous failures of deterrence he argues we should closely examine particular opponents culture and beliefs in order to better anticipate their likely responses to U S deterrence threats
