What China Actually Wants from Africa: an Analysis of the Major Factors Affecting Foreign Direct Investment from China to Sub-Saharan Africa Maureen Sibongile Mabasa, 2020

Economic relations between China and Sub-Saharan Africa (SSA) have grown phenomenally in recent years. Among the developing countries, China has become a leading source of foreign direct investment (FDI) in SSA and Chinese investment has diversified geographically to reach 44 countries in SSA. Different narratives have been provided to articulate China's growing interest in Sub-Saharan Africa (SSA) for some elementary reasons such as attraction is worth commuting on. For China, as the second richest country in the world, is perceived to be aggressively taking the centre stage in the global economy. As for African states, China is the ideal commercial partner that seldom slaps special political pre-conditions upon its readily available suppliers and frequently gives the continent diplomatic backing. China can be arguably mentioned that it uses what it is called dollar diplomacy. Dollar diplomacy can be defined as the use of a country's financial power to extend its international influence, a form of foreign policy to further its aims through the use of economic power by guaranteeing loans made to foreign countries or is the power of a nation's financial resources. Therefore, dollar diplomacy can be attributed as the use of diplomatic influence, economic pressure and military power to protect a nation's economic and business interests abroad. The engagement or involvement of China into African economies will be examined to assess if dollar diplomacy was or is at play. Since 2000, 2019, China has emerged as Africa's largest trading partner, which is the period the paper will focus on until recently. Chinese direct investment in and lending to African countries has grown rapidly in the past few years. A mass of Chinese workers have moved to Africa in recent years with estimates running as high as one million in pursuit of investment and trade. Some argue that China's engagement in Africa led to faster growth and poverty reduction on the continent. Whereas some have a different view, arguing that in the long run, China will desert Africa in a very dilapidated state. The statement can be argued to be true and it might not. The statement might have been said out of jealousy, as seeing that China is penetrating the African market rapidly and aggressively. So, Furthermore, growth in Sub-Saharan Africa has been very impressive over the past decade, especially in the mid-2000s when GDP growth averaged close to 7% per annum. Note that growth has since slowed down, especially in 2015 and 2016. Both the high levels of growth and the subsequent slowdown are related to China. While China's deepening engagement with Africa has largely been associated with better economic performance, its involvement is not without controversy. This is particularly true in Africa, as typical headlines portray an exploitative relationship. Into Africa, China's Wild Rush, China in Africa: Investment or Exploitation, and authors warn against new colonialism in Africa. The purpose of this paper is to analyze the major factors affecting foreign direct investment (FDI) in Sub-Saharan Africa (SSA) with particular emphasis on Chinese FDI and the influence of dollar diplomacy. The flow in Chinese involvement is relatively recent as China has found a new way to penetrate SSA countries economic markets like no any other continents has ever done Thus one simple objective is to arrange evidence about the scale of China s trade investment and its impact in Sub Saharan Africa and what has attracted that investment into Africa China s economic engagement with Africa is a complex issue with numerous aspects It is usually difficult to find good and comprehensive data on low income countries and much of Africa is low income However more efforts will be done to secure the data to enable analysis in answering the questions concerned Many graphs and tables from different sources have been used to analyse the topic of the paper to ascertain its veracity or and fallaciousness In general China s engagement with Africa is a win win scenario for both sides as alluded at the latest concluded Forum for China Africa Cooperation FOCAC that was held from 3 4 September 2018 in Beijing China So it would make sense to be more forthcoming with information Still there is some available information on and research into China s trade investment and migration vis vis Africa to draw some tentative conclusions and to make some recommendations for African countries and China

China-Africa Dispute Settlement Won Kidane, 2011-11-02 The nature and magnitude of the growth in China Africa economic relations in recent years is unprecedented and extraordinary According to recent estimates the value of China s trade with African nations grew from a mere USD 10 million in the 1980s to USD 55 billion in 2006 and to more than USD 100 billion by the end of 2009 at which time nearly 1 600 Chinese companies were doing business in Africa with a direct stock investment of about USD 7 8 billion The accelerating impetus of China Africa trade has overtaken some crucially important features of an effective trade regime most notably a fully trustworthy dispute resolution system It is the current and potential future efficacy of such a system that is taken up in this book with great understanding and skill The author evaluates existing mechanisms of dispute resolution in all aspects of China Africa economic relations in light of the parties economic and cultural profiles and their evolving legal traditions and goes on to propose a comprehensive institutional model of dispute resolution that takes full account of the economic needs and legal cultures of both China and the various African countries Among the topics and issues that arise in the course of the book are the following suitability of the WTO s dispute resolution mechanism for China Africa trade relations domestic bilateral regional and multilateral law sources affecting China Africa commerce the role of intra Africa bilateral investment treaties competing interests that underpin international investment law relevant legal economic and political challenges and cultural barriers permissible scope of regional trade regimes national treatment versus duty to compensate and harmonization initiatives model laws incoterms restatements The author includes in depth analysis of how China Africa economic relations fare in the varieties of dispute resolution methods available at the major arbitral European and American institutions ICSID AAA ICC LCIA PCA as well as under the rules of the China International Economic and Trade Arbitration Commission CIETAC and the important arbitral fora in Cairo Kuala Lumpur and Lagos Endorsing institutional arbitration as the most appropriate form of resolving trade investment and commercial disputes arising between China and African countries this ground breaking analysis outlines the obstacles and shortcomings of the available means of dispute settlement both in international and domestic contexts and offers deeply informed recommendations for improvement of the existing system Although the book will be welcomed by interested scholars and practitioners for its detailed discussion of how China Africa trade relations are situated within the global trade regime its most enduring value lies in its thorough evaluation of the available options and its proposals for structuring a legal framework within which future disputes will be effectively resolved

Sub-Saharan Africa Jacqueline S. Santiago, 2013 Since 2001 China has rapidly increased its economic engagement with sub Saharan African countries The United States has increased aid to sub Saharan Africa and in 2010 provided more than a quarter of all U S international economic assistance to the region According to some observers China s foreign assistance and investments in Africa have been driven in part by the desire for natural resources and stronger diplomatic relations Some U S officials and other stakeholders also have questioned whether China s activities affect U S interests in the region This book examines the goals and policies in sub Saharan Africa trade grants loans and investment activities in the region and engagement in three case study countries Angola Ghana and Kenya New Directions in Africa-China Studies Chris Alden, Daniel Large, 2018-07-17 Interest in China and Africa is growing exponentially Taking a step back from the events driven reactions characterizing much coverage this timely book reflects more deeply on questions concerning how this subject has been is being and can be studied It offers a comprehensive multi disciplinary and authoritative contribution to Africa China studies Its diverse chapters explore key current research themes and debates such as agency media race ivory development or security using a variety of case studies from Benin Kenya and Tanzania to Angola Mozambique and Mauritius Looking back it explores the evolution of studies about Africa and China Looking forward it explores alternative future possibilities for a complex and constantly evolving subject Showcasing a range of perspectives by leading and emerging scholars New Directions in Africa China Studies is an essential resource for students and scholars of Africa and China relations China's Economic Engagement in North Korea Bo Gao, 2019-02-20 This book addresses growing tensions in Northeast Asia notably between North Korea and China Focusing on China s economic participation in North Korea s minerals and fishery industries the author explores the role of China s sub state and non state actors in implementing China s foreign economic policy towards North Korea The book discusses these actors impact on the regional order in Northeast Asia particularly in the Korean Peninsula The project also provides a comprehensive and up to date account of China s cultural and economic activities in North Korea as implemented by both the historically traditional actors in Jilin and Liaoning provinces in Northeast China and new actors from coastal areas Shandong and Zhejiang provinces and inland provinces Chongqing and Henan to Zhejiang province It argues that in the era of economic decentralisation Chinese sub state and non state actors can independently deal with most of their economic affairs without the need for permission from the central government in Beijing A key read for scholars and students interested in Asian history politics and economics and specifically the East Asian situation this text offers an in depth analysis of recent activity concerning the Sino DPRK economic relationship

China's Education Aid to Africa Wei Ye, 2023-05-31 China's rise as an aid provider in Africa has caught global attention with China's activity being viewed as the projection of soft power of a neo colonialist kind in an international relations context This book which focuses on China's education aid government scholarships training Confucius Institutes dispatched teachers etc reveals a much more complicated picture It outlines how the divide between the Chinese Ministry of Commerce and the Ministry of Education hinders China's soft power projection how much of China's aid is bound up with an education for economic growth outlook mirroring China's own recent experiences of economic development and how China's aid prioritized to reflect the commercial sector's interests is out of step with most international development aid which is dominated by education agendas and the campaigns of international organizations and traditional donors this leaves China easily exposed to the charge of neo colonialism This situation also reveals insufficient knowledge production of China and in South South Cooperation Substantial production of Southern knowledge should recognize the international development cooperation architecture as an open system by which both traditional donors and Southern countries transform
