Individual and Collective Memory Consolidation Thomas J. Anastasio, Kristen Ann Ehrenberger, Patrick Watson, Wenyi Zhang, 2021-08-03 An argument that individuals and collectives form memories by analogous processes and a case study of collective retrograde amnesia We form individual memories by a process known as consolidation the conversion of immediate and fleeting bits of information into a stable and accessible representation of facts and events These memories provide a version of the past that helps us navigate the present and is critical to individual identity In this book Thomas Anastasio Kristen Ann Ehrenberger Patrick Watson and Wenyi Zhang propose that social groups form collective memories by analogous processes Using facts and insights from neuroscience psychology anthropology and history they describe a single process of consolidation with analogous not merely comparable manifestations on any level whether brain family or society They propose a three in one model of memory consolidation composed of a buffer a relator and a generalizer all within the consolidating entity that can explain memory consolidation phenomena on individual and collective levels When consolidation is disrupted by traumatic injury to a brain structure known as the hippocampus memories in the process of being consolidated are lost In individuals this is known as retrograde amnesia The authors hypothesize a social hippocampus and argue that disruption at the collective level can result in collective retrograde amnesia They offer the Chinese Cultural Revolution 1966 1976 as an example of trauma to the social hippocampus and present evidence for the loss of recent collective memory in mainland Chinese populations that experienced the Cultural Revolution

Maki, 2023-07-03 Assessment on college campuses has a sordid history and it is fairly simple to find someone with a traumatic tale to tell It is wise to respect that that reputation is deserved How do you modify the inner workings and culture of a massive institution with minimal resources and even less authority other than GE course approvals and thousands and thousands of talented people busy doing other things The road to departmental assessment can seem both dramatic and apocalyptic especially if one's departmental centre cannot hold and purpose falls apart The Department of English and Linguistics is presently on this journey slouching towards its own revelations of mission and fulfillment of purpose I have become more optimistic about the potential value of the process even if some of my initial skepticism remains This skepticism however has been valuable forcing me to think in more concrete ways about what I do in the classroom As these excerpts show this is no conventional book about assessment It presents the unvarnished first person accounts of fourteen faculty and administrators about how they grappled and engaged with assessment and how despite misgivings and an often contentious process they were able to gain the collaboration of their peers as the benefits for student learning became evident This is a book for skeptical faculty for those who have been tasked to spearhead their institution's call to create a culture of assessment and on campuses where assessment has been widely accepted and implemented for those who now need to ensure this commitment will endure For all these audiences this book offers valuable advice strategies models and ideas NASA Tech Briefs ,2005 The Plight of the Eli'ahtna Thomas Watson,2014-11-14 Book Three of Five On a mission to bring aid to a beleaguered star system John Knowles and Eb shra Wirolen have been hurled by a freak accident across countless light years and are marooned in uncharted space As they work to repair their damaged ship the Eli ahtna and the friends they've left behind launch a desperate rescue mission to bring them home the castaways discover that although they are truly lost they are not alone
