

First aid in the workplace

OHS information for prime contractors, employers and workers

This bulletin gives an overview of workplace first aid requirements in Part 11 of Alberta's Occupational Health and Safety (OHS) Code.

KEY INFORMATION

- Prime contractors, employers and workers have first aid obligations under the Occupational Health and Safety Code.
- Workplace first aid requirements are set out in Part 11 of the OHS Code.

Services, supplies and equipment

The prime contractor – or the employer, if there is no prime contractor – must provide first aiders, first aid supplies, first aid equipment, first aid kits, and a first aid station as required by Section 109 and Schedule 2, Tables 4 to 7 of the OHS Code.

Requirements are set according to these considerations:

- Whether work performed on site is classified as low, medium or high hazard, per Schedule 2.
- The number of workers per shift.
- Whether the work site is a close, distant or isolated work site, per Schedule 2.

Sections 109 and 101(2) of the OHS Code set out additional requirements for prime contractors and employers in relation to first aid services, supplies and equipment. These include requirements related to:

- Location of and accessibility to first aid supplies, equipment, and kits.
- Maintaining and identifying first aid supplies, equipment and kits.
- Signage related to the location of first aid services, equipment and kits.
- Ensuring an emergency communication system is in place for workers to summon first aiders.

First aid kits

Per Schedule 2 of the OHS Code, first aid kits must meet CSA Standard Z1250-17, First aid kits for the workplace. In consulting the schedule, it may help to know that:

- There are three types of CSA standard kits:
 - Type 1 are for personal first aid in low, medium, and high risk environments.
 - Type 2 are for basic first aid in low and medium risk environments.
 - Type 3 are for intermediate first aid in higher risk environments.
- Type 2 and Type 3 CSA standard kits come in three sizes: small, medium and large.

First aid services

The prime contractor – or the employer, if there is no prime contractor – must designate first aiders according to Schedule 2, Tables 5 to 7 of the OHS Code as required by Section 101(1).

The first aiders required in the tables are basic, immediate, advanced, advanced care paramedics and nurses. All these terms are defined under the OHS Code.

First aid training

The prime contractor – or the employer, if there is no prime contractor – must ensure designated workplace first aiders have successfully completed training from an Alberta approved first aid training agency. The training provided by approved training agencies must comply with CSA Standard Z1210-17.

The three levels of first aid certification under the CSA Standard Z1210-17, First aid training for the workplace: Curriculum and quality management for training agencies are basic, intermediate and advanced.

Note that an advanced first aider can be an emergency medical responder or primary care paramedic (as defined in the OHS Code) or a person who holds a certificate in advanced first aid from an approved training agency.

Under Section 101(6) of the code, emergency medical responders, primary care paramedics and advanced care paramedics do not require first aid certificates.

First aid provision in medical settings

Section 101(6) of the OHS Code states that first aid requirements in Section 101 do not apply to hospitals, medical clinics, physicians' offices or nursing homes defined in the Nursing Home Act where a physician, nurse or licensed practical nurse is readily available.
