Austin, 2020-11-24 An evidence based action oriented response to the persistent everyday inequity of academic workplaces Despite decades of effort by federal science funders to increase the numbers of women holding advanced degrees and faculty jobs in science and engineering they are persistently underrepresented in academic STEM disciplines especially in positions of seniority leadership and prestige Women filled 47% of all US jobs in 2015 but held only 24% of STEM jobs Barriers to women are built into academic workplaces biased selection and promotion systems inadequate structures to support those with family and personal responsibilities and old boy networks that can exclude even very successful women from advancing into top leadership roles But this situation can and must change In Building Gender Equity in the Academy Sandra Laursen and Ann E Austin offer a concrete data driven approach to creating institutions that foster gender equity Focusing on STEM fields where gender equity is most lacking Laursen and Austin begin by outlining the need for a systemic approach to gender equity Looking at the successful work being done by specific colleges and universities around the country they analyze twelve strategies these institutions have used to create more inclusive working environments including implementing inclusive recruitment and hiring practices addressing biased evaluation methods establishing equitable tenure and promotion processes strengthening accountability structures particularly among senior leadership improving unwelcoming department climates and cultures supporting dual career couples offering flexible work arrangements that accommodate personal lives promoting faculty professional development and advancement Laursen and Austin also discuss how to bring these strategies together to create systemic change initiatives appropriate for specific institutional contexts Drawing on three illustrative case studies at Case Western Reserve University the University of Texas at El Paso and the University of Wisconsin Madison they explain how real institutions can strategically combine several equity driven approaches thereby leveraging their individual strengths to make change efforts comprehensive Grounded in scholarship but written for busy institutional leaders Building Gender Equity in the Academy is a handbook of actionable strategies for faculty and administrators working to improve the inclusion and visibility of women and others who are marginalized in the sciences and in academe more broadly

The Two-Body Problem Lisa Wolf-Wendel, Susan B. Twombly, Suzanne Rice, 2004-01-05 Approximately eight of every ten academics have spouses or partners who are working professionals and almost half of these partners are academics as well In fact dual career academic couples are so prevalent that the two body problem has become a common way of referring to the situation. Increasingly intense competition to hire the best faculty forces institutions to assist dual career couples in finding suitable employment for the accompanying spouse or partner. The authors of The Two Body Problem examine policies and practices used by colleges and universities to respond to the needs of dual career couples within the economic, legal, and demographic contexts of higher education. Using data from an extensive survey of public and private universities as well as in depth case studies of institutions representing distinctive approaches to this problem, the authors find that the type of institution, its location, size, governance, mission, and resource availability is a critical factor in determining dual career employment options. The Two Body Problem describes various accommodation models in depth and provides valuable information for college and university administrators responsible for hiring faculty and supporting their performance.

Lawrence Rodgers      Academic Motherhood
Kelly Ward, Lisa Wolf-Wendel, 2012-08-31 Academic Motherhood tells the story of over one hundred women who are both professors and mothers and examines how they navigated their professional lives at different career stages. Kelly Ward and Lisa Wolf-Wendel base their findings on a longitudinal study that asks how women faculty on the tenure track manage work and family in their early careers pre-tenure when their children are young under the age of five and then again in mid-career post-tenure when their children are older. The women studied work in a range of institutional settings: research universities, comprehensive universities, liberal arts colleges, and community colleges, and in a variety of disciplines including the sciences, the humanities, and the social sciences. Much of the existing literature on balancing work and family presents a pessimistic view and offers cautionary tales of what to avoid and how to avoid it. In contrast, the goal of Academic Motherhood is to help tenure track faculty and the institutions at which they are employed make it work. Writing for administrators, prospective and current faculty, as well as scholars, Ward and Wolf-Wendel bring an element of hope and optimism to the topic of work and family in academe. They provide insight and policy recommendations that support faculty with children and offer mechanisms for problem solving at personal, departmental, institutional, and national levels.

Part-Time on the Tenure Track Joan M. Herbers, 2014-11-03 The case for a flexible work schedule for faculty has been repeatedly made with one policy recommendation being part-time positions for tenure track tenured faculty (PTTT). Despite some of the benefits of this approach for both faculty and institutions, the PTTT concept is the least implemented policy for faculty flexibility and is poorly understood. This report offers the first comprehensive treatment of PTTT, suggesting that this mode of flexibility enhances recruitment, retention, and engagement of faculty while offering value-added productivity, planning potential, and faculty loyalty for the institution. Herbers provides data that explore how a PTTT policy can lead to faculty success and satisfaction across the lifespan of a career and likewise offers analogies and examples of well-established practices that administrators across institution types can adapt to create their own policies. Administrators and faculty will find the author's policy recommendations, best practices, and solutions to common challenges to be a roadmap for stimulating change in their institutions This is the 5th issue of the 40th volume of the Jossey Bass series ASHE Higher Education Report Each monograph is the definitive analysis of a tough higher education issue based on thorough research of pertinent literature and institutional experiences Topics are identified by a national survey Noted practitioners and scholars are then commissioned to write the reports with experts providing critical reviews of each manuscript before publication The New Ideal

Worker Mireia las Heras Maestro, Nuria Chinchilla Albiol, Marc Grau Grau, 2019-06-29 Many managers and organizations still assume that employees who devote long hours to their jobs with no family interference are ideal workers However this assumption has negative consequences for employees their families and more interestingly for their organizations This book provides a wealth of empirical evidence from around the globe as well as innovative conceptual frameworks to help practitioners and researchers alike to go beyond the classic notion of the ideal worker and to rethink what companies actually need from their employees As it demonstrates doing so will be beneficial for countless men and women and for society at large Commerce, Justice, Science, and Related Agencies Appropriations for 2015 United States. Coyne, Monica Lee, 2004-07-31 This book presents a challenge to feminist perspectives that see the glass ceiling as the exclusive domain of women's careers and work life The authors address existing debates and extend them to include original empirical evidence from several US and UK comparative studies that look at the effect of caring for dependents including care for children and elder care upon the careers and aspirations of both men and women Shaping Work-Life Culture in Higher Education

Laura Koppes Bryan, Cheryl A. Wilson, 2014-07-11 Shaping Work Life Culture in Higher Education provides strategies to implement beneficial work life policies in colleges and universities As compared to the corporate sector higher education institutions have been slow to implement policies aimed at fostering diversity and a healthy work life balance which can result in lower morale job satisfaction and productivity and causes poor recruitment and retention Based on extensive research this book argues that an effective organizational culture is one in which managers and supervisors recognize that professional and personal lives are not mutually exclusive With concrete guidelines recommendations techniques and additional resources throughout this book outlines best practices for creating a beneficial work life culture on campus and documents cases of supportive department chairs and administrators A necessary guide for higher education leaders this book will inform administrators about how they can foster positive work life cultures in their departments and institutions
