✓ Exclusively available on IvyPanda

Ethical dilemmas are a common occurrence in social workers' practice. The involvement of numerous stakeholders with different interests, values and goals often creates situations that demand resolution of complex decision-making processes. The current paper examines the case of Fern, a 17-year-old Chinese girl with developmental delays and a complicated health condition who requires the services of professional clinicians in order to ensure an adequate level of welfare.

Since Fern cannot make decisions, her parents have decided to terminate hospitalisation and take Fern home for cultural reasons. In order to resolve the emerging dilemma, it is necessary to identify the involved stakeholders, model two possible courses of events, evaluate the implications of each and come to a conclusion regarding the preferential option using an ethical decision-making framework.

Ethical Dilemma

A situation can be considered an ethical dilemma when several possible solutions to the problem are valid and relevant but mutually exclusive, with no evident advantage to any of them (Weber & Pockett 2011). In this case, Fern, who is both non-verbal and suffering from Proteus syndrome (a rare condition of tissue overgrowth) requires constant and exhaustive medical care that is difficult to provide at home. Her previous developmental and family history indicates benefits received from hospitalisation as well as some evidence of difficulties experienced by the parents in their attempts to provide adequate care at home.

A recent review of the child's condition identified an increasing need for hospitalisation. However, during a conference organised to update the care plan, the parents expressed a reluctance to comply with the scenario recommended by the medical experts and stated their intention to take their daughter home, citing cultural reasons. Since Fern is unable to make decisions due to developmental delays, there is an apparent conflict of interest that clearly involves her well-being and presents no obvious solution.
