Perlin,2013-01-17 There is no question that the death penalty is disproportionately imposed in cases involving defendants with mental disabilities There is clear systemic bias at all stages of the prosecution and the sentencing process in determining who is competent to be executed in the assessment of mitigation evidence in the ways that counsel is assigned in the ways that jury determinations are often contaminated by stereotyped preconceptions of persons with mental disabilities in the ways that cynical expert testimony reflects a propensity on the part of some experts to purposely distort their testimony in order to achieve desired ends These questions are shockingly ignored at all levels of the criminal justice system and by society in general Here Michael Perlin explores the relationship between mental disabilities and the death penalty and explains why and how this state of affairs has come to be to explore why it is necessary to identify the factors that have contributed to this scandalous and shameful policy morass to highlight the series of policy choices that need immediate remediation and to offer some suggestions that might meaningfully ameliorate the situation Using real cases to illustrate the ways in which the persons with mental disabilities are unable to receive fair treatment during death penalty trials he demonstrates the depth of the problem and the way it s been institutionalized so as to be an accepted part of our system He calls for a new approach and greater attention to the issues that have gone overlooked for so long A Handbook of Geriatric Neuropsychology Shane S. Legal Knowledge and Information Systems Enrico Francesconi, Giovanni Sartor, Daniela Tiscornia, 2008 From its very beginning legal informatics was mostly limited to the study of legal databases but very early on the Institute of Legal Information Theory and Techniques ITTIG started being involved with the specific topic of the Jurix conference namely knowledge based systems This book includes programmatic papers with precise accounts of applications and prototypes In many domains the focus has changed For instance research in retrieval has moved from classical Boolean systems into the management of documents in the Web It addresses in particular standards and methods for embedding machine readable information into such documents and search methods that deal with heterogeneous information Similarly with regard to legal concepts the focus has moved from thesauri to ontologies or to techniques for the automatic extraction of concepts from natural language texts In the domain of legal reasoning merely deductive inferences have been expanded with models of legal argumentation dialogue and mediation The conference Logica informatica e diritto 1981 and Jurix 2008 share the connection between theoretical models and the development of applications and prototypes However while in 1981 one could mostly see a juxtaposition of papers in legal theory and papers in computer applications in 2008 we can see how discussions of issues in legal theory are embedded within contributions to legal informatics This shows how research in legal informatics is increasingly becoming an autonomous domain of scientific inquiry by creatively incorporating and developing knowledge and methods from the two disciplines from which it originates legal theory and computer science while preserving links with them Sexuality,

Disability, and the Law M. Perlin,A. Lynch,2016-04-08 Sexuality Disability and the Law approaches issues of sexual autonomy and disability from multiple perspectives including constitutional law international human rights therapeutic jurisprudence history cognitive psychology dignity studies and theories and findings on gender constructs and societal norms Perlin and Lynch determine that if our society continues to assert that persons with mental disabilities possess a primitive morality we allow ourselves to censor their feelings and their actions By denying their ability and desires to show love and affection we justify this disparate treatment Our reliance on stereotypes has warped our attitudes and our policies and has allowed us to avoid important issues of humanity and of dignity that should be at the basis of any policies that affect this population Detecting Malinger and Deception Harold V. Competence and Vulnerability in Biomedical Research Philip Bielby,2008-09-16 Enhanced knowledge of the nature and causes of mental disorder have led increasingly to a need for the recruitment of cognitively vulnerable participants in biomedical research These individuals often fall into the grey area between obvious decisional competence and obvious decisional incompetence and as a result may not be recognised as having the legal capacity to make such decisions themselves At the core of the ethical debate surrounding the participation of cognitively vulnerable individuals in research is when if at all we should judge them decisionally and legally competent to consent to or refuse research participation on their own behalf and when they should be judged incompetent in this respect In this book the author develops a novel justificatory framework for making judgments of decisional competence to consent to biomedical research with reference to five groups of cognitively vulnerable individuals older children and adolescents adults with intellectual disabilities adults with depression adults with schizophrenia and adults with dementia including Alzheimer s disease Using this framework the author argues that we can make morally defensible judgments about the competence or incompetence of a potential participant to give contemporaneous consent to research by having regard to whether a judgment of competence would be more harmful to the generic rights of the potential participant than a judgment of incompetence The argument is also used to justify an account of supported decision making in research and applied to evaluate the extent to which this approach is evident in existing ethical guidelines and legal provisions The book will be of interest to bioethicists as well as psychiatrists and academic medical lawyers interested in normative questions raised by the concepts of competence and capacity

Evaluating Competencies
