Write a narrative account analysing the key events of the Soviet expansion in Eastern Europe in the years 1945-48.

Stalin increased his power and influence through the expansion of the Soviet Union through Eastern Europe. This was to be done by establishing Communist governments and totalitarian states. Stalin's main objective in his expansion was to invade Poland. This was because it was an unprotected gateway to attack Russia, as done so three times in the past, so it was essential to establish friendly borders. However, it can be argued that Stalin then for more. In June 1945, a coalition government of several parties was set up in Poland. Two years later elections were rigged resulting in a purely Communist government. To preserve communist power, the leader of the main opposition party was forced to flee to London. Consequently, Stalin increased Soviet expansion and his communist ideology.

As a result, Polish reforms led to tension increasing between the East and the West due to the belief that Stalin was spreading communism throughout Europe and challenging the balance of power. In Stalin's opinion, it was essential to create this buffer zone of satellite states to maintain the security of Russia. Accordingly, Stalin then began to control Hungary. During a time of economic uncertainty, when communism seemed most appealing (as it will share the wealth of society equally), the Communist Party seized control of the Ministry of Interior. This resulted in unquestionable control of the police allowing the arrest of the dominant party leader, Kovacs in 1947. Due to the removal of opposition, the Communists thrived in the government. A one-party state was established to maintain Communist reign too.

The invasion of Hungary, further worsened relationships between the superpowers, because it reaffirmed the thought of Soviet domination. Thus, this created the ideal conditions of an emerging Cold War as it created a clear division in beliefs and forms of power/influence. Due to the Long Telegram, Stalin felt the need to increase the protection of his nation due to America's urge to use its omnipotent army. Stalin ensured this by projecting his ideology on Czechoslovakia. Although a communist government had already been established here, the Soviet Union, in 1948, used the army to seize control of the country. Many non-communists were murdered and arrested such as Jan Masaryk. Additionally, rigged elections resulted in sustained power and complete control by Stalin.

Explain two consequences of the Tehran Conference of November 1943

One consequence of the Tehran Conference of November 1943 was that it led to an agreement on opening a second front in France to ultimately defeat the Nazis. Stalin had been insisting on this act for a long time and believed that Roosevelt and Churchill were purposely allowing Russia to suffer and then attack them at its weakest. By finally acting openly Stalin's wishes resulted in improved relationships between the Big 3 as for Stalin his country's well-being was considered and ultimately led to the defeat of a common enemy, Hitler and the Nazis.

Another consequence of the Tehran Conference of November 1943 is that it led to increased tension between the Big 3 as either member's opinion was disregarded in certain matters. Churchill's idea of an allied invasion through the Balkans therefore preventing the expansion of the Red Army was rejected by Stalin. This increased tension as it seemed as though the Big 3 was going to become a Big 2. Similarly, there was tension between Churchill and the Soviets when Churchill openly spoke about detesting

A New Cold War? Nicholas Ross Smith, 2019-06-29 This book examines the contention that current US Russia relations have descended into a New Cold War It examines four key dimensions of the original Cold War the structural the ideological the psychological and the technological and argues that the current US Russia relationship bears little resemblance to the Cold War Presently the international system is transitioning towards multipolarity with Russia a declining power while current ideological differences and threat perceptions are neither as rigid nor as bleak as they once were Ultimately when the four dimensions of analysis are weighed in unison this work argues that the claim of a New Cold War is a hyperbolic assessment of US Russia relations

The Fallacies of Cold War Deterrence and a New Direction Keith B. Payne, 2014-07-11 In 1938 Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain hoped that a policy of appeasement would satisfy Adolf Hitler's territorial appetite and structured British policy accordingly This plan was a failure chiefly because Hitler was not a statesman who would ultimately conform to familiar norms Chamberlain's policy was doomed because he had greatly misjudged Hitler's basic beliefs and thus his behavior U S Cold War nuclear deterrence policy was similarly based on the confident but questionable assumption that Soviet leaders would be rational by Washington's standards they would behave reasonably when presented with nuclear threats The United States assumed that any sane challenger would be deterred from severe provocations because not to do so would be foolish Keith B Payne addresses the question of whether this line of reasoning is adequate for the post Cold War period By analyzing past situations and a plausible future scenario a U S Chinese crisis over Taiwan he proposes that American policymakers move away from the assumption that all our opponents are comfortably predictable by the standards of our own culture In order to avoid unexpected and possibly disastrous failures of deterrence he argues we should closely examine particular opponents culture and beliefs in order to better anticipate their likely responses to U S deterrence threats

Nested Security Erin K. Jenne, 2015-11-02 Why does soft power conflict management meet with variable success over the course of a single mediation In Nested Security Erin K Jenne asserts that international conflict management is almost never a straightforward case of success or failure Instead external mediators may reduce communal tensions at one point but utterly fail at another point even if the incentives for conflict remain unchanged Jenne explains this puzzle using a nested security model of conflict management which holds that protracted ethnic or ideological conflicts are rarely internal affairs but rather are embedded in wider regional and or great power disputes Internal conflict is nested within a regional environment which in turn is nested in a global environment Efforts to reduce conflict on the ground are therefore unlikely to succeed without first containing or resolving inter state or trans state conflict processes Nested security is neither irreversible nor static ethnic relations may easily go from nested security to nested insecurity when the regional or geopolitical structures that support them are destabilized through some exogenous pressure or shocks including kin state intervention transborder ethnic ties refugee flows or other factors related to regional conflict processes Jenne argues that regional security regimes are ideally suited to the management of internal conflicts because neighbors that have a strong incentive to work for stability provide critical hard power backing to soft power missions Jenne tests her theory against two regional security regimes in Central and Eastern Europe the interwar minorities regime under the League of Nations German minorities in Central Europe Hungarian minorities in the Carpathian Basin and disputes over the land Islands Memel and Danzig and the ad hoc security regime of the post Cold War period focusing on Russian speaking minorities in the Baltic States and Albanian minorities in Montenegro Macedonia and northern Kosovo
