Learning from Experience Hui Zhang, 2021-01-22 Background Simulation enhances experiential learning through creating experience to form the basis of learning and it has been recognized as an effective pedagogy in current health professions education As an integral element of simulation debriefing contributes to transforming the created experience to new knowledge Video assisted debriefing VAD refers to adding audio visual capture and review to traditional verbal debriefing VD Despite being regarded as gold standard for simulation evidence reporting educational effects of VAD is mixed and its best practice remains absent

Aims The aims of this thesis were to develop a framework for VAD to test and compare its effects on prelicensure nursing students debriefing experiences reflective abilities and nursing competencies with VD without video as well as to explore its potential impact on facilitators perceptions and practices following high fidelity simulation

Design and methods This thesis comprised of four studies with different research designs Study I was a systematic review which synthesized the characteristics of existing VAD practices in health professions education and evaluated its effectiveness on learners reactions learning and behaviors Study II was a proof of concept study which developed of a three phase framework for VAD and tested its preliminary effects on nursing students debriefing experiences reflective abilities and nursing competencies using a pretest posttest design Study III adopted a qualitative method to explore nursing students experiences and perspectives of a structured VAD using focus groups Data were analyzed using thematic analysis approach Study IV employed a mixed method research design to investigate the impact of a three phase VAD on nursing students debriefing experiences perceived stress as well as facilitators perceptions and debriefing practices

Results Study I showed that existing VAD offered comparable educational effects as VD in terms of learners experiences attitudes and performance except on knowledge acquisition Video did not demonstrate its continuous advantage in debriefing which informed the absence of best practice The preliminary results of Study II reported that a three phase VAD significantly improved students debriefing experiences
