Lost in Practice: Transforming Nordic Educational Action Research Karin Rönnerman, Petri Salo, 2014-11-04 Lost in Practice offers a further development of the notion of Nordic educational action research as described in an earlier volume Nurturing praxis 2008 aiming to deepen and enrich understandings of the Nordic educational tradition and its various practices It explores Nordic traditions and theories such as bildung practical knowledge regime and translation theory with the aim of furthering a seminal conversation between practice theory and action research Furthermore it illuminates the use of these theories in the context of Nordic countries by presenting a number of case studies on professional development practices in which specific forms and arenas for enhancing dialogue and meaning making are in focus The practices of study and research circles peer group mentoring and dialogue conferences as developed in the Nordic countries throughout the 20th century are presented and discussed both in terms of established traditions and of practices of collaborative development The book also reflects on the regional traditions and educational practices in the Nordic countries are reflected on in the third part of the book The volume addresses teachers at all levels in the educational system particularly those who are interested in understanding educational action research and furthering collaborative forms of professional development based on insights from different traditions for understanding and furthering the development of educational practices without getting lost

Decentring Leadership Christine Grice, Amanda Lizier, Susanne Francisco, 2024-02-22 This book is about the practices of leading and their arrangements in a range of contemporary educational contexts It seeks to shift the traditional individual and role based educational leadership narrative to more transformational shared and ongoing practices between people thereby decentring leadership In this volume contributors consider leading from a practice perspective across a range of educational contexts Focusing on leading rather than leadership they examine how educational leaders lead through decentring from a range of positions and across a range of educational sectors from schools to higher education Chapters attend to the practices of leading to decentre normative traditional notions of leadership that focus on the individual leader as the unit of study They draw on the theory of practice architectures to understand leading as a shared and ongoing process rather than as an individual act This growing body of work that uses the theory of practice architectures TPA is disrupting people's thinking towards leading as a practice Focusing on practices and their arrangements shifts the traditional role based educational leadership narrative to the more transformational elements of practice architectures in thinking about leading in contemporary contexts Decentring Leadership will be a key resource for practitioners and researchers of education leadership and policy educational administration educational research educational studies and sociology It was originally published as a special issue of the Journal of Educational Administration and History

Rethinking Educational Practice Through Reflexive Inquiry Nicole Mockler, Judyth Sachs, 2011-04-13 Susan Groundwater Smith is one of the most influential voices in the world of educational practitioner inquiry The convener in Australia of the Coalition of Knowledge Building Schools she is a staunch advocate of innovative methods of practitioner inquiry with a particular emphasis upon student voice and the use of images in capturing young people's perspectives on their learning experience. So it is more than fitting that this unique text on practitioner inquiry and teacher professional learning is dedicated to her. Rethinking Education Practice Through Reflexive Inquiry is a compilation of essays that explore contemporary issues in practitioner inquiry and action research from the perspective of both university-based and school-based authors. The essays discuss the practical, political, and theoretical dimensions of practitioner inquiry, advancing the argument that the adoption of an inquiring approach to practice is both an integral dimension of teachers' work in the modern school as well as critical to effective and authentic professional learning. And the essays draw on the work of Groundwater Smith to demonstrate the benefits brought to bear on schools, teachers, and learners when the complex nature of the relationship between inquiry and practice is understood and acted upon in pursuit of democratic knowledge interests.

The Palgrave International Handbook of Action Research Lonnie L. Rowell, Catherine D. Bruce, Joseph M. Shosh, Margaret M. Riel, 2016-10-26. The Palgrave International Handbook of Action Research offers a vivid portrait of both theoretical perspectives and practical action research activity and related benefits around the globe while attending to the cultural, political, social, historical, and ecological contexts that localize, shape, and characterize action research. Consisting of teachers, youth workers, counselors, nurses, community developers, artists, ecologists, farmers, settlement dwellers, students, professors, and intellectual activists on every continent and at every edge of the globe, the movement sustained and inspired by this community was born of the efforts of intellectual activists in the mid-twentieth century, specifically Orlando Fals Borda, Paulo Freire, Myles Horton, Kurt Lewin. Cross-national issues of networking as well as the challenges, tensions, and issues associated with the transformative power of action research are explored from multiple perspectives, providing unique contributions to our understanding of what it means to do action research and to be an action researcher. This handbook sets a global action research agenda and map for readers to consider as they embark on new projects.

Surviving Emotional Work for Teachers Jean Hopman, 2020-10-29. Surviving Emotional Work for Teachers is a guide to improving teachers' wellbeing and practice through support of their emotional workload. The book argues that teachers should be given a formal opportunity to debrief on challenging events, allowing them to reflect on and reframe these experiences in a way that informs future practice to prevent the emotional fatigue that can lead teachers to leave the field altogether. Each chapter opens with a teacher's story acknowledging the emotional layers present in the scenario and what learnings can be drawn from it. Each of these stories features tension between what is expected of teachers and how they are limited to act, which is further fuelled by underlying assumptions. This is valuable reading for teachers at all stages of their career, whether preparing for the complex work ahead or making sense of past and current experiences. This book offers a reflexive process that teachers and schools can implement to facilitate the useful exploration of their emotion. Such a process is vital for the overall wellbeing of
