Chinese Martial Arts: Changing Views and Practices Michael DeMarco, Since ancient times some observant people have made the revered Book of Change Yijing their lifelong study Change is the fundamental principle found in every aspect of our lives Change is the Way of the universe Confucian and Daoist texts are filled with anecdotal and philosophic discourse related to this theme There is little wonder why we find the concept of change in the diverse Chinese martial traditions This anthology presents articles from the Journal of Asian Martial Arts that are related to the theme of change This does not mean that the authors are writing solely about philosophic ideas such as yin yang taiji five phases wuxing or the eight hexagrams bagua From the content of these articles you will see how the views needs purposes and understandings of Chinese martial arts have changed over the centuries By expounding on these themes each author demonstrates how the actual practice of martial arts has changed in tandem with these fluctuating views Supported by in depth research interviews and field experience the nine articles included here offer us a view of Chinese martial arts from many angles Of course effectiveness is one of the criteria for skills that are valued as being truly martial To improve the effectiveness some leading practitioners gained insights from nature particularly from the animal kingdom Also in both ancient and modern times Chinese practitioners borrowed from other styles The concept of mixed martial arts is nothing new There have been spinoffs to the warrior arts Even centuries ago the martial arts were utilized in entertaining flowery performances as in Peking opera The variety of martial movements were certainly conducive for good health so there is a long tradition of incorporating these in exercises practices solely for health and longevity In the early twentieth century martial arts became a political tool for boosting the spirit of country vitalizing the sick man of Asia Perhaps the most notable change in Chinese martial arts can be seen in the modern sportification of it Motivated by rank trophies and money the combative elements have been forsaken in favor of competition and show Originally practical techniques have been transformed into pure acrobatics This special anthology provides an encompassing overview of the development and variety of Chinese martial arts You will come to appreciate the ancient roots and the forces that have influenced how and why these arts are practiced today

Fairbairn's Object Relations Theory in the Clinical Setting David P. Celani, 2010 W R D Fairbairn 1889 1964 challenged the dominance of Freud's drive theory with a psychoanalytic theory based on the internalization of human relationships Fairbairn assumed that the unconscious develops in childhood and contains dissociated memories of parental neglect insensitivity and outright abuse that are impossible for the children to tolerate consciously In Fairbairn's model these dissociated memories protect developing children from recognizing how badly they are being treated and allow them to remain attached even to physically abusive parents Attachment is paramount in Fairbairn's model as he recognized that children are absolutely and unconditionally dependent on their parents Kidnapped children who remain attached to their abusive captors despite opportunities to escape illustrate this intense dependency even into adolescence At the heart of Fairbairn's model is a structural theory that organizes actual relational events into three self and object pairs one conscious pair the central ego which relates exclusively to the ideal object in the external world and two mostly unconscious pairs the child's antilibidinal ego which relates exclusively to the rejecting parts of the object and the child's libidinal ego which relates exclusively to the exciting parts of the object The two dissociated self and object pairs remain in the unconscious but can emerge and suddenly take over the individual's central ego When they emerge the other is misperceived as either an exciting or a rejecting object thus turning these internal structures into a source of transferences and reenactments Fairbairn's central defense mechanism splitting is the fast shift from central ego dominance to either the libidinal ego or the antilibidinal ego a near perfect model of the borderline personality disorder In this book David Celani reviews Fairbairn's five foundational papers and outlines their application in the clinical setting He discusses the four unconscious structures and offers the clinician concrete suggestions on how to recognize and respond to them effectively in the heat of the clinical interview Incorporating decades of experience into his analysis Celani emphasizes the internalization of the therapist as a new good object and devotes entire sections to the treatment of histrionic obsessive and borderline personality disorders
