Cahill, 2024-08-22 This volume addresses the social relational nature of moral formation emotions and moral agency Drawing on Barth s theological anthropology and his relational conception of the self Cahill argues that Barth envisions moral progress as rooted in the growth of the community Cahill also explores Barth s view of emotion in conversation with the study of emotions in psychology sociology neuroscience and philosophy Building on Barth and these other disciplines Cahill argues for a relational and cognitive conception of emotions while highlighting emotions critical role in regulating group and social relations Emotions are fundamental to interpersonal interactions to group relations and for the reinforcement and disruption of social structures This account of moral formation and emotion is illustrated through the example of climate change A community shaped by love for God solidarity with other creatures and a concern for all of creation leads to an awareness of hegemonic forces and fosters emotions shaped by the kingdom of God that enables the struggle for climate justice

Empathy is widely discussed both in philosophy and more generally One might ask what empathy itself is and how it relates to specific emotions such as sympathy This volume is concerned with theories of emotions that can be described as empathetic either because they presuppose the human capacity for empathy or because they are essential to how empathy operates By exploring how Western philosophers from Ancient Greece up to the twentieth century have understood these emotions it becomes possible not only to gain a deeper understanding of certain empathetic emotions and their relation to the concept of empathy but to also see how these emotions are placed within a broader moral social or religious context Taking into account this context is essential when it comes to engaging with a number of compelling questions Does sympathy provide an adequate basis for a theory of human sociability and fellowship What roles do compassion and pity play in our moral lives and in the formation of the practical identities of human beings Can the altruistic character and concern for others that is traditionally ascribed to certain emotions be reconciled with competing values like self love and the self directedness of its concerns Empathetic Emotions in the History of Philosophy provides answers to these important questions
