UNIT 2 A School for Change

Shabana I spent a great chunk of my childhood under the Taliban regime. There were literally no schools for girls. My parents have always made it known to me and to my siblings that education is their number one priority for us. Six percent of women in Afghanistan have a college degree. To be a part of that small minority, I feel extremely lucky and privileged. But at the same time, how did I get to be so lucky? Maybe there was a reason. I realized that I needed to become an educator.

I'm the president and co-founder of SOLA, School of Leadership Afghanistan. It's the first girls' boarding school in Afghanistan. Their education has a real purpose. Not just for them to have a good job, good income, but their education is also for them to serve their country. To be responsible global citizens.

Teacher Exactly, 9 times 4.

Shabana The process of empowerment has to be initiated from within. We create a safe space for these girls to be able to grow into their confident selves. There you go, see, you can all do it. Do you want to try?

Various students If I can't be a doctor, I want to be a teacher of science.

I want to be an explorer.

I want to be so many things, but it's really hard to decide.
