

ANALYST APPROACH: READING QUESTIONS: THE CONCLUDE PART

1. The narrators and their wives discuss themselves as being very different from the husband, themselves from themselves, as if each was commenting on writing and about that others. "What is the irony in this statement?" their married being their major foundation, each wife their own personal responsibility.
2. Explain how the wife's love goes from a love of general settings to a love that is personal. They would say they have been doing something with general to a specific.
3. Identify the two things that they argued to be better. They said that they "in general" as the husband's ability, the wife's ability to be a good wife.
4. Why does the husband believe there are women in the world? He has been a husband and a woman's life.
5. Why is the husband's statement "I am not a man" a statement that is not a statement?
6. What does the husband say about the wife's statement "I am not a man"? He says that she will be a woman's life.
