Facing The Challenges Of Whole School Reform New American Schools After A Decade:

Facing the Challenges of Whole-School Reform Mark Berends, Susan J. Bodilly, Sheila Nataraj Kirby, 2002-04-03 About a decade ago New American Schools NAS set out to address the perceived lagging performance of American students and the lackluster results of school reform efforts As a private nonprofit organization NAS's mission was and is to help schools and districts raise student achievement levels by using whole school designs and design team assistance during implementation Since its inception NAS has engaged in a development phase 1992 1993 a demonstration phase 1993 1995 and a scale up phase 1995 present Over the last ten years RAND has been monitoring the progress of the NAS initiative This book is a retrospective on NAS and draws together the findings from RAND research The book underscores the significant contributions made by NAS to comprehensive school reform but also highlights the challenges of trying to reform schools through whole school designs Divided into sections on each research phase the book concludes with an afterword by NAS updating its own strategy for the future This book will interest those who want to better understand comprehensive school reform and its effects on teaching and learning within high stakes accountability environments Facing the Challenges of Whole-School Reform: New American Schools After a Decade, 2002 New American Schools NAS was formed in 1991 to create and develop whole school designs that would be adopted by schools throughout the country in order to improve student performance It was established as a nonprofit and funded largely by private sector donations NAS founders thought that in the past many reforms were programmatic focused on a particular set of individuals in a school or a particular subject or grade level They believed that adoption of multiple and unconnected approaches to address each area of schooling resulted in a fragmented education program a balkanized school organization and low performance by students NAS's core premise was that all high quality schools possess de facto a unifying design that allows all staff to function to the best of their abilities and that integrates research based practices into a coherent and mutually reinforcing set of effective approaches to teaching and learning for the entire school The best way to ensure that lower performing schools adopted successful designs was to fund design teams to develop break the mold school designs that could be readily adopted by communities around the nation After developing the design teams would go on to implement their designs in schools throughout the country This adoption would lead to NAS's primary goal of improving the performance of students This whole school approach to educational improvement was a dramatically different way of initiating and disseminating large scale educational improvements It was a unique combination of 1 private sector involvement using a venture capitalist approach 2 the choice of whole schools designs as a vehicle for reform and 3 the ambitious goal of scale up across the country A Decade of Whole-school Reform, 2002 School Leadership in the Context of Standards-Based Reform Louis Volante, 2012-05-16 Although standards based reform emerged in the United States and the United Kingdom the idea has spread across the world as an approach to systemic reform It might appear that there is a world wide tsunami of standards based reform that will standardize and homogenize the educational system across the globe This volume makes it very clear however that there is no one approach to standards based reform and countries change there is a danger in paying attention to its evolution and impact in only one context That s what makes this volume so valuable Louis Volante has drawn together descriptions from a wide range of countries all involved in large scale reform and using standards and assessments as part of their process What becomes very obvious is that the language may be the same but the words reflect different contexts and can represent very different ideals values and processes I m sure you will find this book as interesting and challenging as I have a gem that pushes your thinking and does not allow readers to remain neutral Lorna Earl Improving Schools and Educational Systems Alma

Distributed Leadership Alma Harris, 2009-03-17 Alma Harris The eld of school leadership is currently preoccupied with the idea of distributed leadership Few ideas it seems have provoked as much attention debate and controversy Whatever your position on distributed leadership and you cannot fail to have one it is irrefutable that distributed leadership has become the leadership idea of the moment Yet it is an idea that can be traced back as far as the mid 20s and possibly earlier So why the interest Part of the answer can be found in a move away from theorizing and empirical enquiry focused on the single leader This shift has undoubtedly been fuelled by structural changes within schools and across school systems that have resulted in alternative models or forms of leadership practice Evidence highlights how those occupying formal leadership positions are increasingly recognizing the limitations of existing structural arrangements to secure organizational growth and transformation Fullan et al 2007 Harris et al 2008 Chapman et al 2008 As a consequence many heads and principals are actively restructuring realigning and redesigning leadership practice in their school Harris 2008 While the terminology to describe such changes varies the core principle is one of extending or sharing leadership practice While scholars have long argued for the need to move beyond those at the top of organizations in order to examine leadership Barnard 1968 Katz and Kahn 1966 until relatively recently much of the school leadership literature has tended to focus upon the head or the principal

Focus on the Wonder Years Jaana Juvonen, Vi-Nhuan Le, Tessa Kaganoff, Catherine H. Augustine, Louay Constant, 2004-03-25 Young teens undergo multiple changes that seem to set them apart from other students But do middle schools actually meet their special needs The authors describe some of the challenges and offer ways to tackle them such as reassessing the organization of grades K 12 specifically assisting the students most in need finding ways to prevent disciplinary problems and helping parents understand how they can help their children learn at home
