Variability and Individual Differences in Early Social Perception and Social Cognition Jessica Sommerville, Alia Martin, Talee Ziv, 2016-06-10

Over the past three decades mounting evidence has suggested that infants social perceptual and social cognitive abilities are considerably richer than was once thought By the end of the second year of life infants discriminate faces along various social dimensions attend to and understand others goals and intentions use the emotions of others to guide their learning and behavior attribute dispositional characteristics to other agents and make basic social evaluations What has also become clear is that there is a great deal of variability in infants social perception and cognition A critical outstanding question concerns the nature and meaning of such variability The proposed Research Topic welcomes papers addressing cutting edge questions regarding variability and individual differences in early social perception and social cognition The goal of these papers is to investigate overarching questions in this domain which are necessary to move the field forward Variability in early social perception and social cognition among other domains in infancy and early childhood is often attributed to noise or overlooked in favor of focusing on age related changes Yet recent work suggests that variability in social perceptual and social cognitive tasks reliably inter relates and predicts real world social behaviors For example infants everyday experience with different face categories predicts individual differences in face processing infants production of goal directed actions predicts their simultaneous understanding of these actions and variability in social attention during the second year of life is related to theory of mind during the preschool years These findings suggest that variability in performance on social perception and social cognition tasks is not merely a nuisance variable but rather may provide the key to addressing significant questions regarding the nature of infants social perception and social cognition and the processes that underlie developmental change Acknowledging and closely examining and investigating variability in early social perceptual and social cognitive abilities may represent a powerful approach for understanding development in at least two ways First variability can signal transitional points in the developmental onset of a given ability Thus such variability and the extent to which variability relates to experience and or other abilities can be used to test hypotheses regarding mechanisms that underlie developmental changes Second variability can represent more enduring individual differences between infants In this case critical questions arise regarding the source of individual differences that is what factors shape the emergence of individual differences and whether such early individual differences contribute to the development of more advanced and sophisticated forms of social cognition and behavior The goal of this Research Topic will be to encourage researchers to take variability in early social perception and cognition seriously Papers that give variability center stage and are aimed at addressing the value of variability for identifying developmental mechanisms as well as investigating the existence source and antecedents of early individual differences in social perception and social cognition are welcomed Taken together the contributed papers will provide integral new information to the study of social perception and social cognition over the first three years of life Iron Age ,1899 Biometric Recognition Zhenan Sun,Jianhuang Lai,Xilin Chen,Tieniu Tan,2011-11-14 This book constitutes the refereed proceedings of the 6th Chinese Conference on Biometric Recognition CCBR 2011 held in Beijing China in December 2011 The 35 revised full papers were carefully reviewed and selected from 71 submissions The papers are organized in topical sections on problems in face iris hand biometrics speaker handwriting gait behavioral and soft biometrics and security Advances in Electromechanical Technologies V. C. Pandey,P. M. Pandey,S. K. Garg,2020-09-24 This book comprises select peer reviewed papers from the International Conference on Emerging Trends in Electromechanical Technologies Management TEMT 2019 The focus is on current research in interdisciplinary areas of mechanical electrical electronics and information technologies and their management from design to market The book covers a wide range of topics such as computer integrated manufacturing additive manufacturing materials science and engineering simulation and modelling finite element analysis operations and supply chain management decision sciences business analytics project management and sustainable freight transportation The book will be of interest to researchers and practitioners of various disciplines in particular mechanical and industrial engineering Craniofacial Identification Caroline Wilkinson,Christopher Rynn,2012-05-03 The promotion of CCTV surveillance and identity cards along with ever heightened security at airports immigration control and institutional access has seen a dramatic increase in the use of automated and manual recognition In addition several recent disasters have highlighted the problems and challenges associated with current disaster victim identification Discussing the latest advances and key research into identification from the face and skull this book draws together a wide range of elements relating to craniofacial analysis and identification It examines all aspects of facial identification including the determination of facial appearance from the skull comparison of the skull with the face and the verification of living facial images With sections covering the identification of the dead and of the living it provides a valuable review of the current state of play along with the latest research advances in this constantly evolving field Precision medicine approaches for heterogeneous conditions such as autism spectrum disorders (The need for a biomarker exploration phase in clinical trials - Phase 2m) David Quentin Beversdorf,Craig Andrew Erickson,Paul Wang,Thomas Frazier,2023-04-17 Many therapeutic interventions for autism spectrum disorder fail when they are examined in a clinical trial Frequently there is a subset of patients that responds very well to the intervention while others do not and the overall result does not yield a positive result As autism spectrum disorder is highly heterogeneous in its underlying genetics and other etiological risk factors as well as its heterogeneous phenotypic manifestation this variability in response to any specific treatment is not entirely surprising However it remains a challenge to meaningfully subtype this heterogeneity for targeted treatment The purpose of this research topic is to solicit articles that address the heterogeneity in autism spectrum disorder in a manner that may meaningfully contribute to targeted treatment approaches Studies that address the heterogeneity of autism that could theoretically lead to targeted treatment and studies that more directly address the use of a marker in association with response to a treatment are both aspects that will contribute to this purpose It is hoped that this Research Topic will yield articles that can help advance the field towards precision medicine in autism spectrum disorders Manuscripts that contribute to the specification of the heterogeneity of autism spectrum disorder in a manner that could theoretically lead to targeted treatment would be appropriate for this research topic Additionally articles that utilize subtyping in relation to response to treatment would be appropriate for this research topic

The Age of Insight Eric Kandel, 2012-03-27 A brilliant book by Nobel Prize winner Eric R Kandel The Age of Insight takes us to Vienna 1900 where leaders in science medicine and art began a revolution that changed
