Pye,2010 In July 2006 more than 170 researchers and managers from the United States Canada and Mexico convened in Boulder Colorado to discuss the state of the science in environmental threat assessment This two volume general technical report compiles peer reviewed papers that were among those presented during the 3 day conference Papers are organized by four broad topical sections Land Air and Water Fire and Pests Biota and are divided into syntheses and case studies Land topics include discussions of forest land conversion and soil quality as well as investigations of species responses to climate change Air and water topics include discussions of forest vulnerability to severe weather and storm damage modeling Fire topics include discussions of wildland arson and wildfire risk management as well as how people perceive wildfire risk and uncertainty. Pests and biota topics include discussions of risk mapping and probabilistic risk assessments as well as investigations of individual threats including the southern pine beetle and Phytophthora alni. Ultimately this publication will foster exchange and collaboration between those who develop knowledge and tools for threat assessment and those who are responsible for managing forests and rangelands. General Technical Report NC., 1981. Perspectives on Karst Geomorphology, Hydrology, and Geochemistry Russell S. Harmon, Carol M. Wicks, Derek C. Ford, William Blaine White, 2006-01-01. Modern River Science for Watershed Management S. Satheeshkumar, V. Thirukumaran, D. Karunanidhi, 2024-05-10. This book covers the various ways in which rivers discharge water and sediment load which is characteristic of the current situation caused by both human activity and the natural riverine environment. The knowledge of river inclinations and flow patterns points to more river ecosystem management and current multifaceted conditions. Technology advancements in river watershed studies have demonstrated the difference between natural river systems and human influenced hydrological environments and surface processes. Lastly the relationship between river systems and modern activity is impacted by climate change which is also discussed in this volume. This edited book is organized into four parts each discussing a different aspect of modern river science for watershed management including GIS and hydrogeological applications, rainfall runoff modeling that is up to date hydrological processes, artificial intelligence and GIS. Moreover it provides a wealth of information about watershed management particularly for researchers and experts in the hydrogeological field. It covers advanced applications of river morphometric dynamics, conditions, flood risk assessment, sediment load, discharge and their flux measurements as well as field oriented aspects of the river environment and GIS. The book can be used to update current river science studies and to expand scientific understanding for projects related to studies. The edited book is primarily intended for postgraduate students, researchers and experts and practitioners in the fields of hydrology, field hydrogeology, water resource exploration, dam studies and groundwater potential investigation. It is also intended for young researchers, scholars and practitioners working in the field of water resource exploration.

GIS and Remote Sensing Applications in Biogeography and Ecology Andrew C. Millington,Stephen J. Walsh,Patrick E. Osborne,2013-03-11 In recent years the conservation of tropical forests has received worldwide publicity whereas effective forest management particularly for timber extraction has attracted little attention and gained some notoriety The overall aim of the present paper was to examine how environmental micro variation in the Chiquibul Forest Reserve of Belize can influence species distribution and thereby inform management strategy The paper deals first with the background to forest management in Belize then considers the methodology used in the present study and finally assesses the preliminary results The specific objectives are 1 to assess the effects of changing scale on the variability of selected individual soil properties in forest plots within the same vegetation class and 2 to examine the variation in soil properties and tree species distribution and to integrate environmental and ecological data over a range of scales

BACKGROUND Whereas the global and regional distribution of tropical forests is broadly governed by climatic and altitudinal variation individual forest tracts need to consider a range of other locally important factors to explain species distribution and change With very high species diversity tropical forests present a major challenge in the attempt to unravel controlling factors in distribution and growth Swaine et al 1987 Research that attempts to explain diversity has looked at species distribution according to a range of factors with a general recognition that soil fertility plays a significant if ill defined role Swaine 1996 Impact of Climate Change on Hydrological Cycle, Ecosystem, Fisheries and Food Security B.Madhusoodana Kurup,M.R. Boopendranath,M. Harikrishnan,A.V. Shibu,2022-06-01 Climate change has emerged as the most pressing global challenge of the 21st century and it has a dramatic effect on natural ecosystems and environment Intelligent mitigation strategies to minimise climate change impacts can result in advanced novel technologies healthier aquatic ecosystems and higher food security and well being for humans The book includes 45 Chapters by expert authors covering i Hydrometeorology and hydrology ii Natural hazards and disaster risk management iii Aquaculture iv Changing biodiversity scenarios v Capture fisheries vi Food and nutritional insecurity vii Climate change and socio economic scenarios and allied areas It is hoped that this volume will further our understanding and research achievements in the field of climate change and its consequences and facilitate the synthesis of information on how climate related changes will influence oceans marine and inland ecosystems hydrological cycles fisheries and aquaculture and coastal communities and will be immensely useful to planners scientists conservationists environmentalists academicians students and all those who are directly or indirectly involved in the study of impact of climate change and mitigation measures Note T F does not sell or distribute the Hardback in India Pakistan Nepal Bhutan Bangladesh and Sri Lanka Proceedings RMRS. ,1998
