High Performance Computing in Science and Engineering '10

Wolfgang E. Nagel,Dietmar B. Kröner,Michael M. Resch,2010-12-14 This book presents the state of the art in simulation on supercomputers Leading researchers present results achieved on systems of the High Performance Computing Center Stuttgart HLRS for the year 2010 The reports cover all fields of computational science and engineering ranging from CFD to computational physics and chemistry to computer science with a special emphasis on industrially relevant applications Presenting results for both vector systems and microprocessor based systems the book makes it possible to compare the performance levels and usability of various architectures As HLRS operates the largest NEC SX 8 vector system in the world this book gives an excellent insight into the potential of vector systems covering the main methods in high performance computing Its outstanding results in achieving the highest performance for production codes are of particular interest for both scientists and engineers The book includes a wealth of color illustrations and tables Publications of the National Institute of Standards and Technology ... Giovanna Buonomenna,2022-01-22 There is a growing need for better membranes in several emerging application fields especially those related to energy conversion and storage as well as to water treatment and recycling Processability is an important functional property often ignored especially in the early discovery phase for new materials but it should be one of the most important properties that needs to be considered in the development of better membrane materials Useful membrane materials have to be capable of being formed into thin membranes in particular for membrane gas separation water treatment and desalination and then packaged into large area membrane modules All gas separation membranes that are in current commercial use are based on polymers which are solution processable This book intends to deal with composite in most cases hybrid polymer based membranes for three separate application fields energy conversion energy storage and water treatment and recovery Each chapter will explain clearly the various membrane processes then go on to discuss in detail the corresponding advanced membranes used The logic that lies behind this is that you have to understand the process in order to develop new high performance membranes By taking this approach the author aims to overcome the disconnection that currently exists between membrane materials scientists and industrial process engineers Discusses interdisciplinary content by a single author approaching synthesis and development of materials from the perspective of their processability Describes the novel aspects of membrane science that is related to energy storage conversion and wastewater treatment Presents an emphasis on scientific results which have an impact on real applications in terms of renewable and clean energy challenges
