Solutions Study Guide

Concepts

1. Solutions are homogeneous mixtures of two or more substances.
2. solute: substance present in smaller amount.
3. solvent: substance present in greater amount.
4. Liquid solutions are easiest to study because: (1) components are localized, (2) components mix well, and (3) they are easy to handle/transfer.
5. Solutions do not have to be liquid based.
6. solubility: amount of substance that will dissolve in a given amount of solvent.
7. Formation of a gas phase solution comprised of two noble gases is driven by entropy, not energy.
8. entropy: measure of energy of randomization or energy dispersal in a system.
9. Formation of liquid solutions are driven by entropy and intermolecular forces.
10. In solution, there are three types of particle interactions.
11. “Like dissolves like” rule: when solute and solvent have similar intermolecular forces, they tend to form a solution.
12. miscible: term used to describe two liquids that are soluble in all proportions.
13. The relationship between solvent-solute, solvent-solvent, and solute-solute interactions determines when a solution will form. If solvent-solute interactions are about equal to solvent-solvent and solute-solute interactions, entropy will decide whether a solution forms.
14. Energy changes are observed when solutions form. The enthalpy of solution,  $\Delta H_{\text{soln}}$ , is the enthalpy associated with solution creation, and it can be estimated with a Hess's Law type calculation.
15. Formation of a solution can be broken up into three steps: (1) separation of solid into its constituent particles,  $\Delta H_{\text{solute}}$ ; (2) separation of solvent particles to make room for solute,  $\Delta H_{\text{solvent}}$ ; (3) mixing solute particles with solvent particles,  $\Delta H_{\text{mix}}$ .
16. For ionic, water-based solutions,  $\Delta H_{\text{solvent}}$  and  $\Delta H_{\text{mix}}$  can be combined into  $\Delta H_{\text{hydration}}$ .
