Billings,1991 Aviation Automation Charles E. Billings,2018-01-29 The advent of very compact very powerful digital computers has made it possible to automate a great many processes that formerly required large complex machinery Digital computers have made possible revolutionary changes in industry commerce and transportation This book an expansion and revision of the author s earlier technical papers on this subject describes the development of automation in aircraft and in the aviation system its likely evolution in the future and the effects that these technologies have had and will have on the human operators and managers of the system It suggests concepts that may be able to enhance human machine relationships in future systems The author focuses on the ability of human operators to work cooperatively with the constellation of machines they command and control because it is the interactions among these system elements that result in the system s success or failure whether in aviation or elsewhere Aviation automation has provided great social and technological benefits but these benefits have not come without cost In recent years new problems in aircraft have emerged due to failures in the human machine relationship These incidents and accidents have motivated this inquiry into aviation automation Similar problems in the air traffic management system are predicted as it becomes more fully automated In particular incidents and accidents have occurred which suggest that the principle problems with today s aviation automation are associated with its complexity coupling autonomy and opacity These problems are not unique to aviation they exist in other highly dynamic domains as well The author suggests that a different approach to automation called human centered automation offers potential benefits for system performance by enabling a more cooperative human machine relationship in the control and management of aircraft and air traffic

Johannsen,2014-05-23 A key solution for present and future technological problems is an integration systems approach The challenging cross discipline of integrated systems engineering is perhaps more easily accepted and implemented in the organizational structures of industries than in academia The opportunity for both sides leading researchers and industrial practitioners in this field to exchange ideas concepts and solutions has been provided at the IFAC symposia on integrated systems engineering This postprint volume contains all those papers which were presented at the symposia including the three plenary papers and the papers of the case study session as well as the summaries of the three discussion sessions

The Blame Machine Robert B. Whittingham,2004 The Blame Machine describes how disasters and serious accidents result from recurring but potentially avoidable human errors It shows how such errors are preventable because they result from defective systems within a company From real incidents you will be able to identify common causes of human error and typical system deficiencies that have led to these errors On a larger scale you will be able to see where in the organisational or management systems failure occurred so that you can avoid them The book also describes the existence of a blame culture in many organisations which focuses on individual human error whilst ignoring the system failures that caused it The book shows how this blame culture has in the case of a number of past accidents dominated the accident enquiry process hampering a proper investigation of the underlying causes Suggestions are made about how progress can be made to develop a more open culture in organisations both through better understanding of human error by managers and through increased public awareness of the issues The book brings together documentary evidence from recent major incidents from all around the world and within the Rail Water Aviation Shipping Chemical and Nuclear industries Concise Encyclopedia of Aeronautics & Space Systems M.
