acknowledge the emotions of others Narcissists often present themselves as charming confident and charismatic but beneath the surface they struggle with fragile self esteem Their self worth depends on external validation making them highly reactive to criticism or perceived rejection The origins of narcissistic traits can often be traced back to childhood experiences Some narcissists are products of excessive praise and entitlement while others develop these traits as a defense mechanism against neglect or abuse A child raised in an environment where love is conditional based on achievement or obedience may grow up believing their worth is tied to external success rather than intrinsic value In some cases narcissistic tendencies are reinforced by societal pressures that prioritize status power and material success over genuine emotional connection
