Comparing Data Distributions

The dot plots show the heights of the students on two classes.

1. Which class appears to have greater variability in their heights?
2. How many of the class A students are taller than the tallest class B student?
3. If a student is over 165 cm tall, would you think the student is from class A or B?
4. If a student is under 145 cm tall, would you think the student is from class A or B?
5. Based on visual inspection of the dot plots, is there a big difference in the average heights between classes A and B?
