making power of the local In our data driven society it is too easy to assume the transparency of data Instead Yanni Loukissas argues in All Data Are Local we should approach data sets with an awareness that data are created by humans and their dutiful machines at a time in a place with the instruments at hand for audiences that are conditioned to receive them The term data set implies something discrete complete and portable but it is none of those things Examining a series of data sources important for understanding the state of public life in the United States Harvard s Arnold Arboretum the Digital Public Library of America UCLA s Television News Archive and the real estate marketplace Zillow Loukissas shows us how to analyze data settings rather than data sets Loukissas sets out six principles all data are local data have complex attachments to place data are collected from heterogeneous sources data and algorithms are inextricably entangled interfaces recontextualize data and data are indexes to local knowledge He then provides a set of practical guidelines to follow To make his argument Loukissas employs a combination of qualitative research on data cultures and exploratory data visualizations Rebutting the myth of digital universalism Loukissas reminds us of the meaning making power of the local
