NOTICE

Failure to follow established procedures can lead to damage of the parts.

To avoid damage to the parts, always identify and mark the parts so that the parts can be installed in the same location.

NOTICE

The alignment of the bellows is important. Improper alignment may lead to premature failure of the bellows. Misalignment can be identified by visually inspecting the convolutions for uniformity of compression.

Inspect the bellows for damage prior to installation. If there is any damage to the convolutions, discard the bellows. Minor damage to the ends of the bellows may be repaired. However, if there is any difficulty in installation after the repair, discard the bellows.
