Effective Training 5th Edition:

Effective Training Nick P Blanchard, James Thacker, 2012-08-24 Effective Training Systems Strategies and Practices discusses the training process within an overarching framework that shows readers how training activities meet organizational needs that are both strategic and tactical in nature Effective Training P. Nick Blanchard, James W. Thacker, 2004 In The Minimum Wage and Labor Market Outcomes Christopher Flinn argues that in assessing the effects of the minimum wage in the United States and elsewhere a behavioral framework is invaluable for guiding empirical work and the interpretation of results Flinn develops a job search and wage bargaining model that is capable of generating labor market outcomes consistent with observed wage and unemployment duration distributions and also can account for observed changes in employment rates and wages after a minimum wage change Flinn uses previous studies from the minimum wage literature to demonstrate how his model can be used to rationalize and synthesize the diverse results found in widely varying institutional contexts He also shows how observed wage distributions from before and after a minimum wage change can be used to determine if the change was welfare improving More ambitiously and perhaps controversially Flinn proposes the construction and formal estimation of the model using commonly available data model estimates then enable the researcher to determine directly the welfare effects of observed minimum wage changes This model can be used to conduct counterfactual policy experiments even to determine optimal minimum wages under a variety of welfare metrics The development of the model and the econometric theory underlying its estimation are carefully presented so as to enable readers unfamiliar with the econometrics of point process models and dynamic optimization in continuous time to follow the arguments Although most of the book focuses on the case where only the unemployed search for jobs in a homogeneous labor market environment later chapters introduce on the job search into the model and explore its implications for minimum wage policy The book also contains a chapter describing how individual heterogeneity can be introduced into the search matching and bargaining framework Effective Training : Systems, Strategies And Practices 3 E P. Andragogical Instruction for Effective Police Training Robert F. Vodde, 2009 This book details a 2 year study that examined and compared the efficacy of an andragogical instructional methodology to that of a traditional prescriptive pedagogical and militaristic format of basic police training The study not only revealed that an andragogical approach yielded greater outcomes in terms of skills and competencies but was preferred among recruits in great part due to the emphasis placed on experiential learning and a collegiate and collaborative approach to learning In his research Robert F Vodde identified six thematic categorical constructs by which basic police training programs can be organized and administered to include the importance for not only working within a quasi military hierarchal organizational structure but in preparing recruits for the emotional and physical challenges associated with police work When properly administered an andragogical approach represents a well planned and skillfully orchestrated process that holistically integrates all aspects of the curriculum one that capitalizes on the use of multi sensory experiential hands on learning activities that allow recruits to apply what they have learned Considering the short and long term impacts of basic police training Vodde illuminates in this book that an andragogical instructional methodology serves as a pragmatic effective and responsive approach to training it is one that creates a physical and psychological climate that takes into consideration the affective needs of the recruit thus providing for a healthy engaging challenging and collaborative atmosphere in which future police officers develop a clear understanding and perspective of their role within the greater context of society
