THEORY:

The efficiency of an apparatus is defined as the ability of a device to convert energy from one form to other. In other words, it is the ratio of the useful power output to the input power.

While converting energy, some losses take place in the device. Losses occur more in rotating machines due to friction and windage. The transformer is a static device, so its efficiency is 96 to 99%.

In a transformer, there are mainly two types of losses (1) constant loss (iron loss) and (2) variable loss (copper loss).

Constant losses are constant for a given frequency and voltage. The variable loss depends on the square of the load current.

In large transformers, iron losses are between 0.5 to 1.0% and Cu losses between 0.5 to 1.5% of its capacity.

To find efficiency at any load, we require evaluating output and input. This can be done by actually loading the transformer, known as a load test. In this case, the load impedance varies.
