The Central Politics School and Local Governance in Nationalist China Chen-cheng Wang,2023-01-09 This book is a political history of global attempts to reduce politics to science and the results of such an attempt in modern China The book follows the discourses and activities of a special group of local officials in China's Nationalist government 1928-1949. These officials had been students or faculty at the Central Politics School (CPS), the only national university in modern Chinese history that trained professional bureaucrats according to the blueprint of the United States science of public administration conceived by Frank Goodnow. Through its accounts of how these officials handled land administrative reforms, the battlefield of statebuilding during World War II, and rebellions of ethnic minorities, the book discusses why some of the most talented CPS officials resorted to non-modern humanistic political techniques and achieved a Chinese statecraft more efficient and sustainable than science. As such, the book invites readers to think whether science and the rational legal authority proposed by Woodrow Wilson and Max Weber is a proper conceptual framework for understanding politics in China and the rest of the world.

Recent advances in technology such as cloud computing, recent industry standards such as RFID, bibliographic standards like RDA and BIBFRAME, the increased adoption of open source integrated library systems ILS, and continued shift in users' expectations have increased the complexity of the decision regarding ILS for all types of libraries. In a complete re-envisioning of the previous edition Automating Media Centers and Small Libraries: A Microcomputer Based Approach, Dania Bilal conceptualizes library automation in the Library Automation Life Cycle (LALC) that is informed by the systems development lifecycle (SDLC). She explains how the next generation discovery services supported in the library services platforms (LSPs) provide a single point of access to library content in all types and formats, thereby offering a unified solution to managing library operations. The book covers methods of analyzing user requirements, describes how to structure these requirements in RFPs, and details proprietary and open source integrated library systems (ILSs) and LSPs for school, public, special, and academic libraries. Up-to-date information is provided about ILS software installation and testing, software and hardware architecture such as single and multi-tenant SaaS and PaaS and IaaS, and usability assessment strategies for evaluating the ILS or LSP. The author concludes by describing what is likely coming next in the library automation arena. Creating an Award-Winning School

Janet M. Litzel, Joanie A. Walker, 2021-10-29 Creating an Award-Winning School: Outside the Box Thinking for Inside the School. Success is the result of collaboration between the authors and practicing and retired administrators. The book is written for new and experienced school administrators, college-level instructors, and leaders in the private sector. The authors designed the Principals Professional Pyramid to serve as the foundation for the book. Creating the Pyramid and adapting the steps from the study of Steven Covey's Principle-Centered Leadership, the authors arranged the tasks of administration into five major steps: THE SELF, OTHERS, ORGANIZATION, and OPERATIONS, and OUTREACH. The authors developed these steps because they felt that a principal should begin with THE SELF before dealing successfully with
