Evaluating College Writing Programs Publications In Archaeology:

Coming To Terms Patricia Lynne, 2004-11-01 In a provocative book length essay Patricia Lynne argues that most programmatic assessment of student writing in U S public and higher education is conceived in the terms of mid 20th century positivism Since composition as a field had found its most compatible home in constructivism she asks why do compositionists import a conceptual frame for assessment that is incompatible with composition theory By casting this as a clash of paradigms Lynne is able to highlight the ways in which each theory can and cannot influence the shape of assessment within composition She laments as do many in composition that the objectively oriented paradigm of educational assessment theory subjugates and discounts the very social constructionist principles that empower composition pedagogy Further Lynne criticizes recent practice for accommodating the big business of educational testing especially for capitulating to the discourse of positivism embedded in terms like validity and reliability These terms and concepts she argues have little theoretical significance within composition studies and their technical and philosophical import are downplayed by composition assessment scholars There is a need Lynne says for terms of assessment that are native to composition To open this needed discussion within the field she analyzes cutting edge assessment efforts including the work of Broad and Haswell and she advances a set of alternate terms for evaluating assessment practices a set of terms grounded in constructivism and composition Coming to Terms is ambitious and principled and it takes a controversial stand on important issues This strong new volume in assessment theory will be of serious interest to assessment specialists and their students to composition theorists and to those now mounting assessments in their own programs The Archaeologist's Laboratory E.B.

Failing Sideways Stephanie West-Puckett, Nicole I. Caswell, William P. Banks, 2023-05-15 Failing Sideways is an innovative and fresh approach to assessment that intersects writing studies educational measurement and queer rhetorics While valuing and representing the research theory and practice of assessment authors Stephanie West Puckett Nicole I Caswell and William P Banks demonstrate the ways that students teachers and other interested parties can find joy and justice in the work of assessment A failure oriented assessment model unsettles some of the most common practices like rubrics and portfolios and challenges many deeply held assumptions about validity and reliability in order to ask what could happen if assessment was oriented toward possibility and potential Working to engage a more capacious writing construct the authors propose queer validity
