English Language Learners' Socially Constructed Motives and Interactional Moves

Thomas A. Williams, 2019-01-22 This book explores the potential for task based language learning and teaching TBLT within a particular context specifically Hungary by investigating beliefs among Hungarian university students about English and other foreign language teaching It also examines the nature of these learners task based spoken interaction and explores their socioculturally determined choices in that regard It finds that despite much exposure to traditional classroom practices the learners are generally open to TBLT make various sometimes surprising contributions in performing speaking tasks and display a tendency toward collaboration in spoken interaction over communication breakdowns The book offers both universal and culture specific explanations for this tendency The findings detailed here have implications for English and other foreign second language teaching which may be of interest to researchers practitioners and teacher educators not only in Hungary Central Europe and similar educational contexts but anywhere that teachers and learners are struggling to improve foreign and second language development
