In this vein, Pelias invites readers to consider what they value and why. As an engaging compilation of literary works, this book can be read by anyone simply for pleasure. If Truth Be Told can also be used in any number of college courses in communication, creative writing, cultural studies, ethics, narrative inquiry, philosophy, psychology, sociology, and qualitative inquiry. I anticipate that other readers will as well, and we'll all be better for it. If If the Truth Be Told solidifies Pelias's standing as a wise and creative writer, par excellence. Carolyn Ellis, University of South Florida. For anyone interested in learning how to poetically and creatively capture the human experience, If the Truth be Told is a must-read. Each tale richly satisfies yet whets the desire for more; the only solution is to keep reading right through to the end. Lesa Lockford, Bowling Green State University. Ronald J. Pelias has spent his career working with the fusion of performance, literature, and qualitative methods in an ongoing search for truths that provide momentary places of rest.

Making Sense of Race in Education Jessica A. Heybach, Sharon Fraser-Burgess, 2019-09-30. Making Sense of Race in Education: Practices for Change in Difficult Times takes a fresh look at the perennial issue of race in American schools. How do educators in all settings confront the issue of race with students and colleagues given the contemporary backdrop of social movements for racial justice and change? How do educators affect change within their everyday classroom practices without fostering further alienation and discord? Although much has already been written about race and racism in school, this book addresses racial incidents directly and offers practical insights into how P-20 educators can transform these events alongside students and colleagues. Each chapter provides detailed analysis of curriculum, instruction, practices, and pedagogical strategies for addressing race while at the same time wrestling with theoretical conceptions of race, justice, and fairness. Perfect for courses such as Social Foundations of Education, Sociology of Education, Higher Education, Multicultural Education, Cultural Studies in Education, Schools and Society.
