SCORE	TIME

1. Probability Theory (Ch. 13) - Probability is the study of the likelihood of events occurring. It is a branch of mathematics that deals with the analysis of random events.
2. Random Events - Events that occur randomly, without any predictable pattern. Examples include the outcome of a coin toss or the roll of a die.
3. Probability Distribution - A function that describes the likelihood of various outcomes of a random event. It is a mathematical model that represents the probabilities of different outcomes.
4. Normal Distribution - A probability distribution that is symmetric and bell-shaped. It is the most common type of probability distribution and is used to model many natural phenomena.
5. Standard Deviation - A measure of the spread or dispersion of a probability distribution. It is the square root of the variance and is used to quantify the uncertainty of a measurement.

6. Central Limit Theorem - A theorem that states that the distribution of the sample mean of a large number of independent, identically distributed random variables will approach a normal distribution, regardless of the shape of the original distribution.
7. Confidence Interval - A range of values that is likely to contain the true value of a population parameter. It is calculated based on the sample mean and standard deviation.
8. Hypothesis Testing - A statistical method used to test a hypothesis about a population parameter. It involves comparing the sample mean to a known value and determining the probability of observing the sample mean if the hypothesis is true.
9. P-value - The probability of observing a sample mean as extreme as the one observed, assuming the null hypothesis is true. It is used to determine the significance of the results of a hypothesis test.
10. Significance Level - The probability of rejecting the null hypothesis when it is actually true. It is denoted by the Greek letter alpha (α) and is typically set at 0.05.

11. Power of a Test - The probability of rejecting the null hypothesis when it is actually false. It is denoted by the Greek letter beta (β) and is typically set at 0.80.
12. Regression Analysis - A statistical method used to model the relationship between a dependent variable and one or more independent variables. It is used to predict the value of the dependent variable based on the values of the independent variables.
13. Correlation Coefficient - A measure of the strength and direction of the linear relationship between two variables. It is denoted by the Greek letter rho (ρ) and ranges from -1 to 1.
14. Chi-Square Test - A statistical test used to determine the independence of two categorical variables. It is based on the chi-square distribution and is used to test the null hypothesis of independence.
15. F-test - A statistical test used to compare the variances of two populations. It is based on the F-distribution and is used to test the null hypothesis of equal variances.

16. t-test - A statistical test used to compare the means of two populations. It is based on the t-distribution and is used to test the null hypothesis of equal means.
17. ANOVA - Analysis of Variance. A statistical test used to compare the means of three or more populations. It is based on the F-distribution and is used to test the null hypothesis of equal means.

18. Bayesian Inference - A statistical method used to update the probability of a hypothesis as more evidence is gathered. It is based on Bayes' theorem and is used to calculate the posterior probability of a hypothesis given the observed data.
19. Maximum Likelihood Estimation - A statistical method used to estimate the parameters of a probability distribution. It involves finding the values of the parameters that maximize the likelihood of the observed data.
20. Markov Chain - A stochastic process that moves from one state to another according to a set of probabilities. It is used to model systems that change over time.

21. Monte Carlo Simulation - A statistical method used to model the behavior of a system by generating random samples from a probability distribution. It is used to estimate the expected value of a function of the system.
22. Stochastic Process - A process that evolves over time in a random manner. It is used to model systems that change over time in a random way.
23. Queueing Theory - A branch of probability theory that deals with the analysis of systems in which requests for service are received by a server and then served. It is used to model systems such as traffic flow and computer networks.

24. Game Theory - A branch of mathematics that deals with the study of strategic interactions between rational decision-makers. It is used to model situations where the outcome for one individual depends on the actions of others.
25. Evolutionary Game Theory - A branch of game theory that deals with the study of the evolution of strategies in a population. It is used to model the evolution of social norms and behaviors.
26. Information Theory - A branch of mathematics that deals with the study of the quantification, storage, and communication of information. It is used to model the transmission of data over a noisy channel.

27. Control Theory - A branch of engineering that deals with the study of the behavior of dynamical systems. It is used to design systems that can maintain a desired state or follow a desired trajectory.
28. Optimization Theory - A branch of mathematics that deals with the study of the optimization of a function. It is used to find the values of the parameters that minimize or maximize a function.
29. Linear Algebra - A branch of mathematics that deals with the study of linear equations and matrices. It is used to solve systems of linear equations and to analyze the properties of matrices.

30. Calculus - A branch of mathematics that deals with the study of the rates of change of functions. It is used to find the maximum and minimum values of functions and to calculate the area under a curve.
