Description

The TS1310 control is a microprocessor-based power transfer control system. The control provides normal and generator source monitoring, generator set starting and power switch control functions. It is suitable for use in emergency, standby and optional standby applications. The integration of all functions into a single control system provides enhanced reliability and performance compared to conventional transfer switch control systems.

The operator panel of the TS1310 control is easy to use and understand, utilizing LED lamps for status indications and push-button controls for operator control functions.

The TS1310 control is field programmable without the use of a service tool.

The control source monitoring provisions include single or three phase monitoring for the normal source and single phase monitoring for the generator source.

The control is configurable to provide commonly required features such as programmed transition, sync check, pre-transfer signals, generator exerciser and other functions.

Features

Voltage sensing - Control directly senses utility and generator set voltages from 75-600 VAC line-to-line. The control senses all phases on the normal source and single phase on the generator set source.

Frequency sensing - Selectable 50 Hz or 60 Hz (generator set source).

Easy to use operator panel - Reliable color-coded LED indicating lamps and graphical labeling make it easy for an operator to understand source condition and switch position.

Environmental protections - The control enclosure is protected from dust, moisture and physical intrusion. The operator panel is provided with UV protection for long life in direct sunlight.

Environment - The control is designed for proper operation without recalibration in ambient temperatures from -30 °C to +70 °C (-22 °F to +158 °F) and for storage from -55 °C to +80 °C (-67 °F to +176 °F) and will operate at 95% relative humidity, non-condensing.

Warranty and service - All Cummins Power Generation products are backed by a comprehensive warranty and worldwide distributor service network to provide fast local parts and service support.
