
Chapter 14 - Forging the National Economy (1790 - 1860)

I. The Westward Movement

1. The U.S. marched quickly toward the West which proved to be very hard with disease and loneliness.
2. Frontier people were individualistic, superstitious and ill-informed of current matters.

II. Shaping the Western Landscape

1. The westward movement molded the environment.
 - Tobacco overuse had exhausted the land forcing settlers to move on, but "Kentucky bluegrass" thrived.
 - Settlers trapped beavers, sea otters, and bison for fur to ship back East.
2. The spirit of nationalism led to an appreciation of the American wilderness.
 - Artist George Catlin pushed for national parks and later achieved it with Yellowstone in 1872.

III. The March of the Millions

1. In the mid-1800s, the population continued to double every 25 years.
 - By 1860, the original 13 states now had become 33 states; the American population was 4th in the world (behind Russia, France, Austria).
 - Urban growth continued explosively.
 - In 1790, only New York & Philadelphia had more than 20,000 people, but by 1860, 43 cities had.
 - With growth came poor sanitation & later, sewage systems and piped-in water came about.
2. A high birthrate had accounted for population growth, but near 1850s, millions of Irish and German came.
 - They came due to a surplus population in Europe, but not all came to the U.S.
 - The appeal of the U.S. was for land, freedom from church, no aristocracy, 3 meat meals a day.
 - Also, transoceanic steamships were used meaning travel time dropped to 12 days and it was safer.

IV. The Emerald Isle Moves West

1. The Irish potato famine in the mid-1840s led to the death of 2 million and saw many flee to the U.S.
 - "Black Forties" — they mainly came to cities like Boston and especially New York (biggest Irish city).
 - They were illiterate, discriminated against by older Americans, and received lowest-paying jobs (railroad-building).

William Byrd

Forging The National Economy Study Guide Answers:

Developmental and Cultural Nationalisms Radhika Desai, 2013-10-18 Premature announcements of the eclipse of nation states under globalization and empire stand exposed as the 21st century's first economic crisis underlines their continuing importance. A predominantly cultural study of nationalism was unable to resist the globalization thesis. Focusing on selected Asian cases, this book argues that nationalisms have always contained political economies as well as cultural politics. Placing nation states centrally in our understanding of modern capitalism, it challenges the globalization thesis. Rather than eclipse nations and nationalisms, they have undergone changes under the impact of neoliberalism since the 1970s. Classical 20th-century developmental nationalisms emphasised citizenship, economy and future orientations. Later cultural nationalisms, Asian values, Hindutva, Confucianism or Nihonjiron stressed identity, culture and past orientations. Amid neoliberalism's flagrantly unequal political economy, not primarily concerned with material production or productivity, they glorified static conceptions of original cultures and identities, whether religious, ethnic or other, and justified inequality as cultural difference. In contrast to the popular mobilizations which powered developmental nationalisms, cultural nationalisms thrived on neoliberalism's disengagement and disenfranchisement, albeit partially compensated by the political baptism of newly enriched groups. Extremist wings of cultural nationalism in some countries were a function of this lack of popular support. This book was published as a special issue of Third World Quarterly.

Class Questions Joan Acker, 2006 Class Questions Feminist Answers examines feminist theories of class and intersectionality and proposes a theory of gendered and racialized class processes as deeply embedded in capitalist practices, both historically and today. Joan Acker argues that large work organizations are primary locations in which gendered and racialized class inequalities are created. As neo-liberal market practices reorganize work, gendered and racialized class inequalities are both reorganized and increasing nationally and globally. This book will appeal to readers interested in a feminist discussion of class as a racialized and gendered process intimately tied to the capitalist economic system.
