Discussing Chemistry and Steam

Trevor Harvey Levere, Gerard L'Estrange Turner, Jan Golinski, Larry R. Stewart, 2002

This book contains an edition of the Minutes of the Coffee House Philosophical Society 1780-1787 as transcribed by William Nicholson the secretary to the society. The 1780s were exciting years for science and for its applications and experimental philosophy and industrial development were closely interwoven. This coffee house society provided a group of natural philosophers with the opportunity to discuss the topics that most interested them. The minutes themselves unique in their completeness constitute a continuous record of the fortnightly meetings of a group of leading natural philosophers instrument makers physicians and industrialist entrepreneurs. They are an important resource for historians of politics and society including the industrial revolution as well as for historians of science and technology. In addition to a fully edited edition of the Minute book and brief biographies of all the members the book includes essays by Jan Golinski on the members discussion about phlogiston and other issues relating to the chemical revolution and by Larry Stewart on the reforming radical and industrial contexts of the networks to which the members belonged. One of the standard criticisms of English science in the late eighteenth century is its isolation from the rest of Europe. These minutes offer a very different picture. The members the Irish chemist Richard Kirwan taking the most active role discussed current issues in science and reported on scientific and industrial advances from all Europe and even from Hudson's Bay showing early English awareness of the latest developments. The Minute Book gives a sense of history at a particular period and is invaluable to all historians whatever their specialism.

British Naval Intelligence through the Twentieth Century

Andrew Boyd, 2020-08-30

This is the first comprehensive account of how intelligence influenced and sustained British naval power from the mid nineteenth century when the Admiralty first created a dedicated intelligence department through to the end of the Cold War. It brings a critical new dimension to our understanding of British naval history in this period while setting naval intelligence in a wider context and emphasising the many parts of the British state that contributed to naval requirements. It is also a fascinating study of how naval needs and personalities shaped the British intelligence community that exists today and the concepts and values that underpin it. The author explains why and how intelligence was collected and assesses its real impact on policy and operations. It confirms that naval intelligence was critical to Britain's survival and ultimate victory in the two World Wars but significantly reappraises its role highlighting the importance of communications intelligence to an effective blockade in the First and according Ultra less dominance compared to other sources in the Second. It reveals that coverage of Germany before 1914 and of the three Axis powers in the interwar period was more comprehensive and effective than previously suggested and while British power declined rapidly after 1945 the book shows how intelligence helped the Royal Navy to remain a significant global force for the rest of the twentieth century and in submarine warfare especially in the second half of the Cold War to achieve influence and impact for Britain far exceeding resources expended. This compelling new history will have wide appeal to all readers interested in intelligence and its crucial impact on naval policy and operations. The
