Transforming Mental Health Services Howard H. Goldman, Jeffrey A. Buck, Kenneth S. Thompson, 2009-06-26 This compendium of 17 articles addresses the goals set forth by the President's New Freedom Commission on Mental Health in its 2003 report Achieving the Promise Transforming Mental Health Care in America The report represents the first time since the Carter Administration that such a high level group evaluated U S mental health care The report painted a dismal picture of the nation's mental health system saying the system was so broken that it was beyond simple repair The Commission said that current services focused on managing disabilities rather than helping patients achieve a meaningful life in their communities It also stated that mental health service providers ignored the preferences of consumers and their families The articles in Transforming Mental Health Services Implementing the Federal Agenda for Change originally published between 2006 and 2009 in Psychiatric Services journal of the American Psychiatric Association offer recommendations to assist adults with serious mental illness and children with serious emotional disturbances They include a series of reforms in which the emphasis is on recovery as an achievable goal and the need for a person centered orientation in service delivery There is also discussion of the reasons many service providers resist using a recovery orientation and how this can be remedied Transforming Mental Health Services Implementing the Federal Agenda for Change consists of updates of papers written by the Commission's subcommittees addressing issues fundamental to those living with mental illness It is organized into four sections The first focuses on the interface between mental health and general health and on employment housing and Medicaid financing The second continues addressing financing and Medicaid as well as issues related to school mental health recovery transformation of data systems and acceleration of research The third includes reports from four states with transformation initiatives designed to ensure that consumers have a strong voice in the development of recovery oriented services The final section describes progress five years after the President's Commission Report and concludes with a proposal by the current director of the Center for Mental Health Services for a public health model of mental health care for the 21st century This compilation of well researched and well written articles offers an excellent resource for frontline care providers facility administrators and advocates It serves as an equally valuable resource for state policy makers who wish to present a convincing case that change is happening and that the recommendations can be translated into effective policies Although consumers and their families will receive support for their perception that service providers ignore their needs they will also be encouraged that change for the better is coming to the U S mental health care system Child Welfare Practice with Immigrant Children and Families Alan Dettlaff, Rowena Fong, 2014-06-11 Children in immigrant families represent nearly one fourth of all children living in the United States As this population of children has increased so has their representation among children involved in child welfare and related systems Once immigrant families come to the attention of these systems they often have multiple and complex needs that must be addressed to ensure children s safety and well being Culturally competent practice with Latino Asian and African immigrants requires that professionals understand the impact of immigration and acculturation on immigrant families to conduct adequate assessments and provide interventions that respond appropriately to their needs Professionals also need to be familiar with federal and state policies that affect immigrant families and how those policies may affect service delivery At the system level child welfare agencies need to educate and train a culturally competent workforce that responds appropriately to children and families from diverse cultures This book addresses these critical issues and provides recommendations for the development of culturally competent assessment intervention and prevention activities in child welfare agencies This information can be used as a resource by child welfare administrators practitioners and students to improve the child welfare system s response to immigrant children and families and promote culturally competent practice This book was published as a special issue of the Journal of Public Child Welfare Handbook of Child Maltreatment Richard D.
